Cedars is the first novel by American author Charles W Chesnutt. It was published in 1900 by Houghton Mifflin and Company. The story occurs in the southern American states of North and South Carolina a few years following the American Civil War. Rena Walden, a young woman of mixed white and black ancestry, leaves home to join her brother who has migrated to a new city where he lives as a white man. Following her brother's lead, Rena begins living as a white woman. The secret of her identity leads to conflict when she falls in love with a white aristocrat who learns the truth of her heredity. The ensuing drama emphasizes themes of interracial relations and depicted the intricacies of racial identity in the American south. Chesnutt's autobiography informed the novel's themes. Being of predominantly European ancestry, Chesnutt was light skinned enough to pass as a white man, although he openly identified with his African American roots. Additionally, his portrayal of interracial romantic relations in The House Behind the Cedars was controversial. Although the novel was critically well received, its controversy contributed to poor financial performance.

Plot summary The novel opens a few years after the Civil War with John Warwick from Clarence, South Carolina, leaving a hotel in Patesville, North Carolina. He walks around the town in which he used to live and tries to visit Judge Archibald Straight, but he is not in his office. Warwick's attention is captured by a striking young woman who he does not recognize as Rena and follows her to the house behind the cedars. Warwick cautiously approaches the house, worried about being seen, and is invited in by Molly Walden. He says that he has a message for Walden from her son, but she then realizes that Warwick is her son, who she has not seen in years. Warwick joyfully reunites with his mother and his sister Rena and tells them what his life has been like since leaving home. He reveals that he has become a successful lawyer and that he was married, but his wife died and left him with a baby boy. Warwick asks Rena if she would come live with him and help take care of his son, Albert. Molly is reluctant to send off her only daughter, and Rena does not want to leave her mother alone, but John ultimately convinces his mother that Rena will have a better life with him. The next morning, Warwick visits Judge Straight, his mentor, for whom he used to work as an office boy under the name John Walden. Straight warns him not to stay in town for too long or else people may start to question his presence. He then contemplates that it would have been better for John to move further away from home than South Carolina, even though the laws were with him. Rena says goodbye to her mother and Frank Fowler, one of their workmen who is a close friend of the family and is deeply in love with Rena. Upon their arrival to Clarence, John and Rena attend a tournament where men dressed as knights participate in a jousting competition. The Warwicks are seated among the most prominent white guests when Rena drops her handkerchief into the ring, and one of the knights catches it and uses it as a token of good luck. The knight, George Tryon, wins the tournament and names Rena his queen of love and beauty. As the winner, Tyron invites Rena to accompany him to the annual tournament ball.

The House Behind the Cedars Charles Waddell Chesnutt, 2009-02-01 To be Suddenly White Steven J. Belluscio, 2006

To Be Suddenly White explores the troubled relationship between literary passing and literary realism the dominant aesthetic motivation behind the late nineteenth and early twentieth century ethnic texts considered in this study Steven J Belluscio uses the passing narrative to provide insight into how the representation of ethnic and racial subjectivity served in part to counter dominant narratives of difference To Be Suddenly White offers new readings of traditional passing narratives from the African American literary tradition such as James Weldon Johnson's The Autobiography of an Ex Coloured Man Nella Larsen's Passing and George Schuyler's Black No More It is also the first full length work to consider a number of Jewish American and Italian American prose texts such as Mary Antin's The Promised Land Anzia Yezierska's Bread Givers and Guido d Agostino's Olives on the Apple Tree as racial passing narratives in their own right Belluscio also demonstrates the contradictions that result from the passing narrative's exploration of racial subjectivity racial difference and race itself When they are seen in comparison ideological differences begin to emerge between African American passing narratives and white ethnic Jewish American and Italian American passing narratives According to Belluscio the former are more likely to engage in a direct critique of ideas of race while the latter have a tendency to become more simplistic acculturation narratives in which a character moves from a position of ethnic difference to one of full American identity The desire to be suddenly white serves as a continual point of reference for Belluscio enabling him to analyze how writers even when overtly aware of the problematic nature of race especially African American writers are also aware of the conditions it creates the transformations it provokes and the consequences of both By examining the content and context of these works Belluscio elucidates their engagement with discourses of racial and ethnic differences assimilation passing and identity an approach that has profound implications for the understanding of American literary history HOUSE BEHIND THE CEDARS CHARLES W.
