The Hudson River School:

American Paradise Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.),1987 Traces the history of the Hudson River School of American painters shows works by Church Cole and Inness and describes the background of each painting The Hudson River and Its Painters John K. Howat,1983 Rare collection of Hudson River paintings each accompanied by a delightful essay about the artist the painting the history and significance of the scene painted The Hudson River School Trewin Copplestone,1999 The so called Hudson River School has a place of special importance in the history of American painting Although there were many professional artists working in the early and developing American society from the 17th to the 19th centuries most of them apart from the many charming naive practitioners were itinerant portrait painters or those who looked to Europe for their style and subject matter It was not until the early 19th century that artists began to consider the landscape which surrounded them as an interesting subject in itself when they did they perceived a grandeur spaciousness and quality of natural beauty which filled them with awe and wonderment It was this opening of the eyes of their compatriots to their natural heritage that these painters who have come to be known as the Hudson River School initiated Although in the first instance it was the area of the Hudson River stretching northwards from New York that first entranced them as the American continent towards the Rockies unfolded the artists followed and produced work that revealed a magnificence of scale the great lakes the towering mountains deep valleys and gorges of the land in which they found themselves In this way although the Hudson River was the first area to exert its influence on these landscapists and gave its name to them their work spread widely to encompass the whole land There was also another transcendental aspect to their work they recognized the hand of God in their new environment and accordingly introduced a sense of divine mission into their painting which appealed to the adventurous religious spirit of the early settlers Through this their art acquired a new significance which had previously been absent The story of the artists and their pictorial crusade is included in this selective survey which of its nature can only include a small number of the very many who have been identified with the Hudson River School The Hudson River School New-York Historical Society,Linda S. Ferber,2009-10-06 Examines art from the Hudson River School nineteenth century artists whose work captured the American landscape including selections from Albert Bierstadt Frederic Church Thomas Cole and others and featuring one hundred reproductions and fold out pages The Hudson River School Louise Minks,1998 Enjoy the beauty and variety of the American experience through the work of these great artists With stunning full color plates additional black and white illustrations and concise authoritative text these unique beautifully produced studies present the life work and achievements of America s greatest painters architects and photographers 65 80 full color plates River Views of the Hudson River School Nancy Siegel,2009-05-01 The Hudson River School Bert D. Yaeger,2018 During a fifty year period an artistic movement developed in America that was based on Romanticism and inspired by the wild areas in the vicinity of New York s Hudson River The first native American school of landscape painting included artists Thomas Cole Asher Brown Durand and Thomas Doughty as well as Frederic Church Thomas Moran and Albert Bierstadt While most of these artists did not think of themselves as belonging to a movement they did share a sense of wonder at the grandeur of the New World's remarkable scenic wilderness In the American Artist series you'll read about more masters of the art world who not only depicted American life and landscape through beautiful works but also broadened our perspectives by employing the tools of their trade with the highest levels of creativity and insight Experience firsthand these artists' vision and influence through the seventy or more spectacular full color reproductions of their work Each title in this series includes color photos throughout and back matter including an index and further reading lists for books and internet resources Educational Videos are offered in the back through the use of QR codes that when scanned takes the student to an online video showing a video relating to the book topic This gives the readers additional content to supplement the text
