Customary International Humanitarian Law

Jean-Marie Henckaerts,Louise Doswald-Beck,2005 In 1996 the International Committee of the Red Cross alongside a range of renowned experts embarked upon a major international study into current state practice in international humanitarian law in order to identify customary law in this area This book is the result of that study a comprehensive analysis of the customary rules of international humanitarian law applicable in international and non international armed conflicts Given that important treaties in this area have not yet been universally ratified this is a publication of major importance carried out at the express request of the international community In so doing this study identifies the common core of international humanitarian law binding on all parties to all armed conflicts

Women, Armed Conflict and

International Law Judith G. Gardam,Michelle J. Jarvis,2021-08-04 The role that gender plays in determining the experience of those caught up in armed conflict has long been overlooked Moreover the extent to which gender influences the international legal regime designed to address the humanitarian problems arising from armed conflict has similarly been ignored In the early 1990s prompted by extensive media coverage of the rape of women during the conflict in Bosnia Herzegovina the international community was forced to critically examine the capacity of international law to respond to such crimes The prevalence of sexual violence is however merely one aspect of the distinctive impact of conflict on women Although a range of factors influence the way individual women experience armed conflict the endemic gender discrimination that exists in all societies is a common theme from Cambodia where women land mine victims are less likely to receive treatment for their injuries than are men to South Africa where women widowed during the Apartheid years have become outcasts in their own society To date the extent to which international law addresses the myriad of ways in which women are affected by armed conflict has received little attention This work takes the experience of women of armed conflict matches it with existing provisions of international law and investigates reasons for the silence of the latter in relation to these events for women It is the first broad based critique of international humanitarian law from a gender perspective The contribution of the United Nations through its focus on human rights to improving the protection of women in armed conflict is also considered The authors underscore the need for new approaches to the issue of women and armed conflict and canvass a range of options for moving forward

Human Rights Albert A. Zinnos,2007 Human rights refers to the concept of human beings as having universal rights or status regardless of legal jurisdiction and likewise other localising factors such as ethnicity and nationality For many the concept of human rights is based in religious principles However because a formal concept of human rights has not been universally accepted the term has some degree of variance between its use in different local jurisdictions difference in both meaningful substance as well as in protocols for and styles of application Ultimately the most general meaning of the term is one which can only apply universally and hence the term human rights is often itself an appeal to such transcended principles without basing such on existing legal concepts The term humanism refers to the developing doctrine of such universally applicable values and it is on the basic concept that human beings have innate rights that more specific local legal concepts are often based Within particular societies human rights refers to standards of behaviour as accepted within their respective legal systems regarding 1 the well being of individuals 2 the freedom and autonomy of individuals and 3 the representation of the human interest in government These rights commonly include the right to life the right to an adequate standard of living the prohibition of genocide freedom from torture and other mistreatment freedom of expression freedom of movement the right to self determination the right to education and the right to participation in cultural and political life These norms are based on the legal and political traditions of United Nations member states and are incorporated into international human rights instruments This new book brings together the latest book literature centred on this crucial topic
