This measure has been proposed for the use of additional 100000 t/ha/yr of nitrogen and their economic performance is fully assessed that have been proposed by the authors, and more specifically 70 and 100 t/ha/yr products, already known and used in the country, and from there had no further evolution.

THE AUTOMOTIVE: For the automotive industry, the challenge is to develop a strategy that maximizes the potential of the product line while minimizing the product line's impact on the environment. This requires a deep understanding of the product's performance and its potential impact on the environment. The goal is to create a product that not only meets the needs of the consumer but also minimizes its impact on the environment.
