The Master Builders:

The Master Builder Reporter, No. 1- Master Builders Company, 1954 The Master Builders UNKNOWN.

AUTHOR, 2015-06-26 Excerpt from The Master Builders A Record of the Construction of the World's Highest Commercial Structure The master builders who builded the awe inspiring cathedrals of the Middle Ages gave expression to a deep and rich communal spirit Closely knit in interests and united by a common love for the beautiful they co operated to embody in stone the noblest thought and aspirations of their time To day we are deemed incapable of this kind of fruitful co operation Critics have often said that the commercialism of our age stands in the way of a group of men who would bend their best efforts to the production of a beautiful object by their common law That this indictment is unjust one has but to know the extraordinary services rendered by all the contractors and builders who aided in the erection of the Woolworth Building From the time that the first spade of earth was mined to the last touch on the topmost spire of the tower every one of the hundreds of men from chief executive to day laborer worked harmoniously and in unison like a well trained army of veterans The man of theory and the man of practice the man who worked with his Gains and the man who worked with his hands all united to translate the thing that was on paper into the concrete handiwork of the master builders But what seemed most remarkable to the layman as well as to the experienced architect and builder was the intelligent manner in which the individual contractor approached his appointed task Each contractor came to the work with a clear conception of his special duty and a realization of his own responsibility each contractor worked as a unit in cooperation with the other contractors and all together they formed a working organization that was responsible for the completion of the greatest structure in the world in record time and without serious delay or mishap Of course such splendid preparedness bespoke a well systematized organization that could measure up to an unusual emergency But it was this very fact that determined the selection of a contractor for work on the Woolworth Building He not only had to be in the best in his field have the best material at his disposal the best talent at his service but it was also essential that he have an organization Kick of him which was thoroughly adequate and had reached the maximum of efficiency Personally I believe that the contractor and workers who aided in the completion of the Woolworth Building are rightfully proud of their part in the work not merely because of the magnitude of the undertaking but also because of the exacting conditions that were demanded of them But in quality of work and material in speed and resourcefulness each contractor fulfilled all conditions thus giving him the rightful title of Master Builder About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such
