Classics Transformed Christopher Stray, 1998 The first book to give a general account of the transformation of classics in English schools and universities from being the amateur knowledge of the Victorian gentleman to that of the professional scholar from an elite social marker to a marginalized academic subject The challenges to the authority of classics in 19th century England are analysed as is the wide range of ideological responses by its practitioners The impact of university reform on the content and organization of classical knowledge is described in detail with special reference to Cambridge Chapters are devoted to the effects of state intervention social snobbery and democracy on the provision of classics in schools and the dissensions within the bodies set up to defend it The narrative is carried through to the abolition of Compulsory Latin in 1960 and the absence of classics from the National Curriculum in 1988

Gendering European History, 1780-1920 Barbara Caine, Glenda Sluga, 2000 The main theme of Gendering European History is the importance of gender to mainstream history and specifically to the major themes of nineteenth century European history such as nationalism liberalism and socialism Organized both chronologically and thematically it explores the question of sexual differences in relation to class ethnicity and race and the development of key historical debates about identity work home politics and citizenship in specific national contexts across Europe At the same time it provides the social and political contexts in which those debates arose Intended both as an introductory work for college students and one that offers new interpretations and discussions for scholars in the field this study brings together the extensive but often fragmented literature on gender in European history

1830-1848, the End of Metaphysics as a Transformation of Culture Herbert De Vriese, 2003 The question of the end of metaphysics is generally considered as a central issue concerning the nature and significance of philosophy as such and accordingly as belonging to the realm of pure or fundamental philosophy By contrast this book investigates to what extent the end of metaphysics might be related to specific influences from outside philosophy Focusing on the period between 1830 and 1848 it argues that metaphysics was not so much challenged by internal philosophical argument but rather by a transformation of Western culture in its entirety Metaphysics was overtaken by the modern spirit of the age In consequence this book approaches the end of metaphysics as a problem of the philosophy of culture Three historians of culture provide an overview and analysis of the Age of Revolution by focusing upon the political revolution in France the industrial revolution in England and the intellectual revolution in Germany respectively The proclamations of the end of metaphysics by Auguste Comte Friedrich Engels and Otto Friedrich Gruppe are shown to mirror this threefold cultural transformation Against this backdrop the idea of the end of metaphysics is brought into relief as a historical reality during the years 1830 to 1848 The editors are members of the Centre for Metaphysics and Culture at the University of Antwerp A Consolidated Bibliography of Urban History Richard Rodger, 1996 Lists and classifies without annotation over 20 000 references drawn from decades of issues of Urban History and its predecessor Urban History Yearbook Following the annual bibliographies carries academic journal articles books listed in the British National Bibliography local history publications and non British publications mostly French and North American The topical sections cover general works population physical structure social structure economic structure transportation and communications politics and administration planning and environment culture and attitudes to towns and cities Indexed by place and author Distributed in the US by Ashgate Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR
