Sharifian,Maryam Jamarani,2013 Studies of intercultural communication in applied linguistics initially focused on miscommunication mainly between native and non native speakers of English The advent of the twenty first century has witnessed however a revolution in the contexts and contents of intercultural communication technological advances such as chat rooms emails personal weblogs Facebook Twitter mobile text messaging on the one hand and the accelerated pace of people's international mobility on the other have given a new meaning to the term intercultural communication Given the remarkable growth in the prevalence of intercultural communication among people from many cultural backgrounds and across many contexts and channels conceptual divides such as native non native are now almost irrelevant This has caused the power attached to English and native speaker like English to lose much of its automatic domination Such developments have provided new opportunities as well as challenges for the study of intercultural communication and its increasingly complex nature This book showcases recent studies in the field in a multitude of contexts to enable a collective effort towards advancements in the area

Cooper,2012-12-06 This volume marks the 75th anniversary of the publication of William Book's 1908 The Psychology of Skill in which typewriting received its first large scale treatment from a psychological standpoint As Book realized early on this form of human behavior is particularly well suited to testing psychological theories of complex motor skill and its acquisition presenting as it does a task that richly engages cognitive and motor components of programming yet involves a form of response output that can be readily quantified Now that typewriting is practiced so widely in workday circumstances studying this activity offers the additional prospect of practical applicability Until recently relatively few studies had been conducted on the psychology of typewriting One might speculate that this dearth of interest stemmed in part from the fact that researchers themselves rarely undertook the activity delegating it instead to the secretarial pool Psychological research on piano playing has produced a literature more sizable than the one on typewriting yet the latter activity has probably been practiced for many more total human hours in this century But contemporary developments in word processing technology have moved the typewriter into the researcher's office and in recent years interest in accompanying psychological issues has grown    Frank Harrison's Shorthand Weekly ,1891    The Phonoscope ,1896
