Taming Traffic:

Children's Active Transportation Richard Larouche, 2018-06-15 Children's Active Transportation is a rigorous and comprehensive examination of the current research and interventions on active transportation for children and youth. As the travel behaviors of these groups tend to be highly routinized and their mobility faces unique constraints such as parental restrictions, mandatory school attendance, and the inability to drive a motor vehicle before late adolescence, this book examines the key factors that influence travel behavior among children and youth, providing key insights into lessons learned from current interventions. Readers will find a resource that clearly demonstrates how critical it is for children to develop strong active transportation habits that carry into adulthood. Discusses the correlates that exist between children's active transportation using a social and ecological model. Summarizes active transportation interventions that show what works to increase non-motorized modes of travel in children. Describes the factors that influence the implementation and effectiveness of interventions.

Taming Traffic Stephen Plowden, 1980 Transportation for Livable Cities Vukan Vuchic, 2017-09-08

The twenty-first century finds civilization heavily based in cities that have grown into large metropolitan areas. Many of these focal points of human activity face problems of economic inefficiency, environmental deterioration, and an unsatisfactory quality of life, problems that go far in determining whether a city is livable. A large share of these problems stems from the inefficiencies and other impacts of urban transportation systems. The era of projects aimed at maximizing vehicular travel is being replaced by the broader goal of achieving livable cities: economically efficient, socially sound, and environmentally friendly. This book explores the complex relationship between transportation and the character of cities and metropolitan regions. Vukan Vuchic applies his experience in urban transportation systems and policies to present a systematic review of transportation modes and their characteristics. Transportation for Livable Cities dispels the myths and emotional advocacies for or against freeways, rail transit, bicycles, and other modes of transportation. The author discusses the consequences of excessive automobile dependence and shows that the most livable cities worldwide have intermodal systems that balance highway and public transit modes while providing for pedestrians, bicyclists, and paratransit. Vuchic defines the policies necessary for achieving livable cities: the effective implementation of integrated intermodal transportation systems.

City of Well-being Hugh Barton, 2016-11-10 City of Well-being provides a radical and holistic introduction to the science and art of town planning. It starts from the premise that the purpose of planning is the health, well-being, and sustainable quality of life of people. Drawing on current and historic examples, it offers inspiration, information, and an integrated perspective which challenges all professions and decision makers that affect the urban environment. It is both authoritative and readable, designed for students, practitioners, politicians, and civil society. The science. Summarizing the most recent research, the book demonstrates the interrelationships between the huge issues of obesity, unhealthy lifestyles, inequality, mental illness, climate change, and environmental quality. The radical implications for transport, housing, economic, social, and energy policies are spelt out The art and politics The book examines how economic development really happens and how spatial decisions reinforce or undermine good intentions It searches for the creative strategies urban forms and neighbourhood designs that can marry the ideal with the real The relationship of planning and politics is tackled head on leading to conclusions about the role of planners communities and development agencies in a pluralistic society Healthy planning principles could provide a powerful logical motivation for all practitioners Ahead of Time Robert Hutchison,2001 Celebrates the achievements of Livable Cities Observed Suzanne H. Crowhurst Lennard, Henry L. Lennard,1995 Miles to Go James A.
