The Great Monsieur Vertelli:

I Shall Not Die James Belich, 2010 Straddling the Maori and European worlds of the 1860s Titokowaru was one of New Zealand's greatest leaders. A brilliant strategist he used every device to save the Taranaki people from European invasion. When peaceful negotiation failed he embarked on a stunning military campaign against government forces. His victories were many before the battle he lost. Although he was forgotten by the Pakeha as a child forgets a nightmare his vision was one that would endure. Titokowaru was born into the Ngati Ruanui tribe of South Taranaki in 1823. Trained as a leader by his people he was converted to Christianity in 1843 taking the name Joseph Orton. For nearly 20 years a pacifist and Methodist teacher he eventually became disillusioned with Christianity and joined the bitter fighting of the period protesting against continual land loss and the erosion of his people's rights. Titokowaru returned to pacifism under the leadership of Te Ua Haumene whose mantle he inherited on the death of the Pai Marire prophet. Through 1866 Titokowaru ruled a hikoi of peace trying to heal the wounds of war in South Taranaki. The mission failing Titokowaru's war broke out on 9 June 1868. A brilliant strategist Titokowaru nearly succeeded in repelling the colonial forces. At the last moment however his supporters failed him in a mystery that has never been solved. As James Belich suggests it was perhaps the old traditions of his people that undermined Titokowaru's feats of leadership in wars that were to shape the country's history. For he was truly a man of two worlds negotiating both with an extraordinary dexterity.

Playing Australia, 2021-10-18 Playing Australia explores the insights and challenges that Australian theatre can offer the international theatre community. Collectively the essays in this book ask what Australian drama is has been and might be both to Australians and non Australians when it is performed in national and international arenas. Playing Australia ranges widely in its discussions and includes analysis of Australian practitioners playing away from home playing with Australian stereotypes and the relationship between play culture politics and national identity. Topics addressed in this diverse collection include whiteness, otherness and negotiations of Aboriginal and Asian identities. Australian school and college drama, the discourse of Australian professional theatre, magazines, Aboriginal Shakespeare, Australian drama and Australian cricket, the marketing of Australian in Germany, the international successes of Tap Dogs and Cloudstreet. New histories of Australian theatre are offered and practitioners whose careers are reconsidered in detail include high wire walker Ella Zuila, playwright May Holt, suffrage worker and playwright Inez Bensusan, classicist Gilbert Murray and commercial playwright Haddon Chambers. With contributions from authors as diverse as Guardian theatre critic Michael Billington and leading post colonial critic Helen Gilbert and interview discussion with Cate Blanchett and Tap Dogs producer Wayne Harrison. Playing Australia seeks to pay tribute to the complexities of Australian theatre experiences to reassess Australian theatre as a significant force in the international arena and to challenge traditional thinking on what Australian theatre can be.
