External Relations Dept., 2011-12-07 Africa s Middle Class Motor finds growing evidence that a recent resurgence in the continent s economic well being has staying power In his overview article Harvard professor Calestous Juma says the emphasis for too long has been on eradicating poverty through aid rather than promoting prosperity through improved infrastructure education entrepreneurship and trade That is now changing there is a growing emphasis on policies that produce a middle class The new African middle class may not have the buying power of a Western middle class but it demands enough goods and services to support stronger economic growth which as IMF African Department head Antoinette Sayeh points out in turn helps the poorest members of society Oxford University economist Paul

Collier discusses a crucial component of Africa's needed infrastructure railways. It is a continent eminently suited to rail development of which has been held back more by political than economic reasons. But even as sub-Saharan Africa thrives, its largest and most important economy, South Africa, has had an anemic performance in recent years. We also profile Ngozi Okonjo Iweala, Nigeria's colorful economic czar. Picture This mines current trends to predict what Africa will look like a half century from now, and Data Spotlight looks at increased regional trade in Africa. Elsewhere, Cornell Professor Eswar Prasad examines a global role reversal in which emerging not advanced economies are displaying resilience in the face of the global economic crisis. The University of Queensland's John Quiggin, who wrote Zombie Economics, examines whether it makes sense in many cases to sell public enterprises. Economists Raghuram Rajan of the University of Chicago and Rodney Ramcharan of the U.S. Federal Reserve find clues to current asset booms and busts in the behavior of U.S. farmland prices a century ago.
