

Mountain ecosystems

Mountain ecosystems are found all over the world. They are unique because they change as you go higher up the mountain, moving with changes of the climate and weather with you all the way.

At lower elevations you might find forests and grasslands. But as you go higher, the trees become smaller and eventually disappear replaced by grass and rocks. Then you might find mountain peat bogs.

At the highest elevations in the world you only find rocks. But some organisms like moss, lichen and certain types of insects have adapted to these harsh conditions.
