The Grim Smile of the Five Towns Arnold Bennett,2015-12-02 In the Five Towns the following history is related by those who know it as something side splittingly funny as one of the best jokes that ever occurred in a district devoted to jokes And I too have hitherto regarded it as such But upon my soul now that I come to write it down it strikes me as being after all a pretty grim tragedy However you shall judge and laugh or cry as you please It began in the little house of Mrs Carpole up at

Bleakridge on the hill between Bursley and Hanbridge Mrs Carpole was the second Mrs Carpole and her husband was dead She had a stepson Horace and a son of her own Sidney Horace is the hero or the villain of the history On the day when the unfortunate affair began he was nineteen years old and a model youth Not only was he getting on in business not only did he give half his evenings to the study of the chemistry of pottery and the other half to various secretaryships in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist Chapel and Sunday school not only did he save money not only was he a comfort to his stepmother and a sort of uncle to Sidney not only was he an early riser a total abstainer a non smoker and a good listener but in addition to the practice of these manifold and rare virtues he found time even at that tender age to pay his tailor s bill promptly and to fold his trousers in the same crease every night so that he always looked neat and dignified Strange to say he made no friends Perhaps he was just a thought too perfect for a district like the Five Towns a sin or so might have endeared him to the entire neighbourhood Perhaps his loneliness was due to his imperfect sense of humour or perhaps to the dull unsmiling heaviness of his somewhat flat features

The Grim Smile of the Five Towns Arnold Bennett,1907 The Grim Smile of the Five Towns Arnold Bennett,2021-02-04 After several months during which Horace had given up all his limited spare time to thesuperintendence of the child s first steps in knowledge Sidney was judged to be sufficiently strong to go to school and it was arranged that he should attend the Endowed School at the WedgwoodInstitution Horace accompanied him thither on the opening day of the term it was an inclementmorning in January and left the young delicate sprig apparently joyous and content to the care ofhis masters and the mercy of his companions But Sidney came home for dinner weeping weepingin spite of his new mortar board cap his new satchel his new box of compasses and his new books His mother kept him at home in the afternoon and by the evening another of those terrible attackshad supervened The doctor and Horace and Mrs Carpole once more lost much precious sleep Themysterious malady continued School was out of the question And when Sidney took the air in charge of his mother everybody stopped to sympathize withhim and to stroke his curls and call him a poor dear and also to commiserate Mrs Carpole As forHorace Bursley tried to feel sorry for Horace but it only succeeded in showing Horace that it washiding a sentiment of indignation against him Each friendly face as it passed Horace in the streetsaid without words There goes the youth who probably ruined his young stepbrother s life Andthrough sheer obstinacy too He dropped the little darling in spite of warnings and protests andthen fell on the top of him Of course he didn t do it on purpose but
