

Estimating Time for Outdoor Tasks

Instructions

Objective: To help students develop estimation skills by measuring and comparing the duration of outdoor activities.

Materials

- Stopwatch or timer (one per group is fine)
- Student recording sheets (provided)
- Outdoor activities
- List of outdoor tasks (examples provided in the student recording sheet)

Procedure

1. Introduction

- Begin by discussing the concept of time estimation. Ask students to share examples of activities they think take a certain amount of time.
- Explain that they will practice measuring outdoor tasks with their stopwatches and compare their estimates with the actual time.

2. Task Setup

- Divide students into pairs or small groups.
- Provide each group with a stopwatch, student recording sheet, and list of outdoor tasks.
- Assign each group a specific outdoor task to estimate.

3. Activity Instructions

- Students practice measuring out loud and record their estimates on the sheet.
- One student in the group times the task while another completes it.
- Once the task is completed, they record the actual time and compare it with their prediction.

4. Wrap-Up Discussion

- Facilitate a class discussion: "What tasks were easier to estimate? What tasks were harder? What strategies helped them make better estimates?"

Time for Outdoor Tasks

Instructions

Students will estimate the time for a small outdoor activity and recording actual time.

Students will calculate the difference between their estimate and actual time for each activity.

Students will compare their estimates with the actual time to estimate and

Time for Outdoor Tasks

Recording Sheet

One use of estimating time? Your challenge is to predict how long an activity will take. Measure the actual time and compare the time.

Predicted Time (seconds/minutes)	Actual Time (seconds/minutes)	Difference (Actual - Predicted)
1 min	1 min	0 min

Time for Outdoor Tasks

Recording Sheet

How accurate was your estimate? Why?

Did you make your time faster or slower?

How close was your estimate to the actual time?

What strategies helped you make better estimates? Why or why not?

How can you use this information to complete the activity more quickly next time?
