The Ims Source Guide To The International Magnetospheric Study Data Analysis:

The IMS Source Book C. T. Russell, David J. Southwood, 1982 Published by the American Geophysical Union as part of the Special Publications Series The International Magnetospheric Study or IMS was an international program under the auspices of SCOSTEP in which a coordinated effort was made to understand magnetospheric processes The active phase of the IMS during which data were gathered ran from 1976 to 1979 with the different data gathering efforts coming on line at various times during this period Although there were many national programs devoted to the IMS the coordination between countries was principally at the level of the participating scientists rather than at the level of the bureaucracy This aspect of the IMS had its advantages and its disadvantages One of the disadvantages is that there is no coordinated system for reporting of the IMS results either with regard to the data gathering effort the workshops devoted to these data or the scientific results of the IMS It is in an attempt to introduce some order in this chaos we have compiled the papers in this book We hope that the book serves both the active researcher involved heavily in the IMS from the beginning and those who would like to gain entry into the IMS study effort For while the active data gathering phase is over the data analysis phase has just begun and there is much to do with the data Geomagnetic Observatory and Survey Practice W.F.

Stuart, 2012-12-06 This issue is a collection of the papers read at the Workshop on Geomagnetic Observatory and Survey Practice held during the XIVth General Assembly of IUGG the International Union of Geology and Geophysics in Hamburg August 1983 sponsored by Division V of the International Association of Geomagnetism and Aeronomy IAGA The papers represent a snapshot taken at a very important time in the history of Geomagnetism and of the sciences which depend on measurements of one kind or another of the Earth's magnetic field Research science now demands a much greater amount of information to be prepared and immediately made available to the scientific user Experimental measurements are now required to be reduced selected and made ready as information which can be recorded as data on magnetic tape in the form required for direct incorporation into the analytical programmes which individual researchers run on digital computers Computing has reduced the lead time between when observations are made and when they are required by researchers Many scientific programmes particularly those related to Solar terrestrial geophysics need data to be analysed as near as possible to the time it is recorded In Geomagnetism these pressures apply to field variations where satellite based geophysical experiments require high resolution of the fine structure of external disturbance fields and also to field mapping on a global and local scale where the demand for increased accuracy calls for better absolute observations and more frequent surveys Japanese Science and Technology, 1983-1984 United States.
