Ten Years After A Commemoration Of The T:

The Fragmenting Force of Memory Norman Saadi Nikro, 2012-04-25 This study is about experimental forms of cultural production that situate and work through personal experiences of the civil war in Lebanon. It addresses selected works of literature autobiography and memoir by Jean Said Makdisi, Rashid al Daif, Elias Khoury and Mai Ghoussooub and the civil war trilogy of documentary films by Mohamed Soueid. From a phenomenological hermeneutic perspective the book is concerned with how they give accounts of themselves as remnants, leftovers and undigested remains of the civil war and of related trajectories of ideological attachment to symbolic mandates. Constrained to reposition their sense of self from an agent of history to a casualty of history their acutely personal works of cultural production initiate an unraveling of both self and circumstance through the fragmenting force of memory. Drawing on a broad range of phenomenological critical theory within the research fields of postcolonial memory, psychoanalytic, gender and literary studies attuned to subjectivity as a field of social production and exchange emphasis is given to how the writers and filmmaker employ a non-presentist, anachronic or paratactic register of memory to excavate both a historical understanding of self and related modalities of social viability. This concerns how the symptomatic style of their work embodies and creatively and critically situates a refusal to package and normalize any idealized account of the war related assemblages of temporal succession or a presentation of self as discrete and omniscient.

Scales of Memory Justin Collings, 2021-01-05 Since the Second World War constitutional justice has spread through much of the democratic world. Often it has followed in the wake of national calamity and historical evil, whether fascism or communism, colonialism or apartheid. Unsurprisingly the memory of such evils plays a prominent role in constitutional adjudication. This book explores the relationship between constitutional interpretation and the memory of historical evil. Specifically it examines how the constitutional courts of the United States, Germany and South Africa have grappled respectively with the legacies of slavery, Nazism and apartheid. Most courts invoke historical evil through either the parenthetical or the redemptive mode of constitutional memory. The parenthetical framework views the evil era as exceptional, a baleful aberration from an otherwise noble and worthy constitutional tradition. Parenthetical jurisprudence reaches beyond the evil era toward stable and enduring values. It sees the constitutional response to evil as restorative rather than revolutionary, a return to and reaffirmation of older traditions. The redemptive mode, by contrast, is more aggressive. Its aim is not to resume a venerable tradition but to reverse recent ills. Its animating spirit is not restoration but antithesis. Its aim is not continuity with deeper pasts but a redemptive future stemming from a stark, complete and vivid rupture. This book demonstrates how across the three jurisdictions the parenthetical mode has often accompanied formalist and originalist approaches to constitutional interpretation, whereas the redemptive mode has accompanied realist and purposive approaches. It also shows how within the three jurisdictions the parenthetical mode of memory has consistently predominated in American constitutional jurisprudence, the redemptive mode in South African jurisprudence and a hybrid parenthetical redemptive mode in German constitutional jurisprudence The real world consequences of these trends have been stark and dramatic Memory matters especially in constitutional interpretation Postnational Memory, Peace and War Nigel Young,2019-11-26 This book examines the phenomenon of modern memory as a reaction to total war an aspiration to truth seeking provoked by the independent forces of modern war and collective violence which is transnational or postnational in character Using examples from prose and poetry film and theatre painting and photography and music and the popular arts the author traces a narrative path through the events of the twentieth century defining the tradition of modern memory in terms of its essentially anti militaristic anti war character as expressed in the manner in which it represents recalled violence and atrocity Through a series of thematic discussions of two world wars the Shoah urbicide and nuclear weapons Postnational Memory explores the formation of transnational memory drawing on examples from industrialized societies with a focus on memory of real events and their reproduction in literature and the arts often including personal recollections that link the self to the represented past As such by asking how the concept of modern memory is constructed through the victims of war and genocide the book constitutes an alternative to national memories and hegemonic militarist or ethnocentric histories Surveying the emergence of new transnational forms of remembering the past it will appeal to students and scholars of sociology memory studies and peace studies as well as those working in disciplines such as modern and international history cultural studies and military studies A Tribute to the Memory of Gardner Colby ,1879

The Storyteller's Memory Palace Hanne Bewernick,2010 Storytelling and remembering rely on similar practices they both arrange images in an ordered structure A story is initially memorised by the author in a mental structure which is transferred to the page via the author s choice of location organisation and imagery An interpretation that emphasises these features enhances the natural capacity for comprehension by mimicking the memory process This study describes and uncovers memory systems including the memory palace and the memory journey in medieval texts The ancient memory techniques are compared to cognitive psychology and used to interpret four modern novels A practical method of interpretation is devised which provides the reader with direct access to a story by opening the door into the storyteller s memory palace A Tribute to the Memory of Ebenezer Thresher Henry Francis Colby,1886
