Hazzard and Harrower Brigitte Olubas, Susan Wyndham, 2024-05-01 Shirley Hazzard and Elizabeth Harrower met in person for the first time in London in 1972 six years after they began a correspondence that would span four decades. They exchanged letters, cards and telegrams and made occasional phone calls between Harrower's home in Sydney and Hazzard's apartments in New York, Naples and Capri. The two women wrote to each other of their daily lives of impediments to writing, their reading, politics and world affairs and in Hazzard's case her travels. And they wrote about Hazzard's mother for whose care Harrower took increasing and increasingly reluctant responsibility from the early 1970s precisely the period when she herself virtually stopped writing. Edited by Brigitte Olubas, Hazzard's official biographer and Susan Wyndham who interviewed both Hazzard and Harrower this is an extraordinary account of two literary luminaries their complex relationship and their times. Hazzard and Harrower is a book to keep close and return to often. Michelle de Kretser Vital, compelling, terrifying, revelatory and a literary pleasure in its own right. Anna Funder Beautiful, wise and unflinching. Will we ever have a chance like this again to eavesdrop on two great writers as they talk books, people and the world for forty years? David Marr An engrossing portrayal of forty years of complicated friendship between two writers only one of whom has the steel or is it the ruthlessness to put her art before everything else? Charlotte Wood I read these letters with mounting excitement. There is a righteous delight in seeing female talent reclaimed two great Australian writers finally treated with the care and rigour they deserve. Diana Reid The Country Gentleman, 1856 A journal for the farm, the garden and the fireside devoted to improvement in agriculture, horticulture and rural taste to elevation in mental, moral and social character and the spread of useful knowledge and current news Contemporary French Literature, 1945 and After Gaëtan Picon, 1974
