The Ghosts Of Modernity Crosscurrents:

Multilingualism in Modernist Fiction J. Taylor-Batty, 2013-07-26 This new study argues that modernist literature is characterised by a multilingual turn Examining the use of different languages in the fiction of a range of writers including Lawrence Richardson Mansfield Rhys Joyce and Beckett Taylor Batty demonstrates the centrality of linguistic plurality to modernist forms of defamiliarisation

Atlantic Cross-currents Susan Z. Andrade, 2001 Taken from a poem by Niyi Osundare Atlantic Cross Currents Transatlantiques was the theme of the 1993 meeting of the African Literature Association held in Guadeloupe suggesting the movement of people languages cultures and ideas The papers included in this volume are divided into three clusters the first focusing on forms of linguistic communication and literary genres the second on the construction of gender memory history and revolt against patriarchy and the third on political change and nation building

The Ghosts of Modernity Jean-Michel Rabaté, Professor of English & Comparative Literature Jean-Michel Rabate, 1996 Jean Michel Rabate the eminent French Joycean combines psychoanalytical and philosophical concepts in rereading the history of modernity to give a more precise meaning to the term modernism Rabate focuses throughout on a single theme the ghostly nature of modernity In writing a history of the concept of modernity with the awareness that the radically new has often been subject to the effects of the return of the repressed Rabate analyzes the notion of loss in various fields in Freudian aesthetics of color in literary history and in philosophy The postmodernist fascination with a lost object allows a reconsideration of the boundaries of such terms as modernism and postmodernism The conclusion ties together all these motifs from Joyce to Barthes and shows their theoretical basis in Marx's criticism of ideology and in Freud's consideration of mourning From the analysis of color as an unthinkable object of discourse to an aesthetics of the unrepresentable Rabate points to the possibility of an ethics of mourning which would seem capable of overcoming the dead end of history whose ending condemns it to eternal repetition
