Talking To Parents:

Communication, Race, and Family Thomas J. Socha, Rhunette C. Diggs, 1999-08-01 This groundbreaking volume explores how family communication influences the perennial and controversial topic of race In assembling this collection editors Thomas J Socha and Rhunette C Diggs argue that the hope for managing America's troubles with race lies not only with communicating about race at public meetings in school and in the media but also and more fundamentally with families communicating constructively about race at home African American and European American family communication researchers come together in this volume to investigate such topics as how Black families communicate to manage the issue of racism how Black parent child communication is used to manage the derogation of Black children the role of television in family communication about race the similarities and differences between and among communication in Black White and biracial couples and families and how family communication education can contribute to a brighter future for all With the aim of developing a clearer understanding of the role that family communication plays in society's move toward a multicultural world this volume provides a crucial examination of how families struggle with issues of ethnic cultural diversity
