The Temple of Memories Jun Jing,1998-10-01 This study focuses on the politics of memory in the village of Dachuan in northwest China in which 85 percent of the villagers are surnamed Kong and believe themselves to be descendants of Confucius It recounts both how this proud community was subjected to intense suffering during the Maoist era culminating in its forcible resettlement in December 1960 to make way for the construction of a major hydroelectric dam and how the village eventually sought recovery through the commemoration of that suffering and the revival of a redefined religion Before 1949 the Kongs had dominated their area because of their political influence wealth and above all their identification with Confucius whose precepts underlay so much of the Chinese ethical and political tradition After the Communists came to power in 1949 these people as a literal embodiment of the Confucian heritage became prime targets for Maoist political campaigns attacking the traditional order from land reform to the Criticize Confucius movement Many villagers were arrested three were beheaded and others died in labor camps When the villagers were forced to hastily abandon their homes and the village temple they had time to disinter only the bones of their closest family members the tombs of earlier generations were destroyed by construction workers for the dam The temple of memory [a poem]. Kenelm Henry Digby,1874 The Art of Memory Henry H.
