Sport in Underdeveloped and Conflict Regions Meredith A. Whitley, William V. Massey, Simon C. Darnell, Brett Smith, 2018-12-07 Over the past two decades scholars and practitioners have taken a keen interest in the field of Sport for Development and Peace SDP These efforts have largely focused on and debated the merits of sport as a tool for development diplomacy and peacebuilding in under resourced underdeveloped and conflict regions Making sense of the positive contributions that sport can offer to such complex and multi faceted issues requires understanding the various connections and meanings that individuals and communities ascribe to their sporting experiences This book offers a unique outlet for research that engages with rather than makes claims about individuals and communities around the world Diverse contemporary and thought provoking examples of qualitative methods in the study of SDP are detailed along with rich meaningful and provocative insights from these studies Readers are invited to think critically about the fields of enquiry philosophical underpinnings and methodologies utilised as well as the audiences engaged and topics explored We hope readers will join us in considering how these chapters can push the SDP field into more rigorous methodologically innovative and diverse approaches to research and evaluation while also engaging with actors who are still often spoken for or about rather than with This book was originally published as a special issue of Qualitative Research in Sport Exercise and Health Transition Cinema Jessica L. Stites Mor, 2012-05-27 In Transition Cinema Jessica Stites Mor documents the critical role filmmakers the film industry and state regulators played in Argentina s volatile and unfinished transition from dictatorship to democracy She shows how during periods of both military repression and civilian rule the state moved to control political film production and its content distribution and exhibition She also reveals the strategies that the industry independent filmmakers and film activists employed to comply with or circumvent these regulations Stites Mor traces three distinct generations of transition cinema each defined by a seminal event that shifted the political economy of national filmmaking The first generation of filmmakers witnessed and participated in civil uprisings such as the Cordobazo in 1969 and faced waves of repression violence and censorship This generation gave rise to vibrant underground exhibitions and film clubs and eventually became symbolically linked to the Peronist Left and radical militancy Following the 1983 return to civilian rule a second generation of political filmmakers emerged at the center of public debates when Buenos Aires became the locus for state level cultural programs to address human rights and collective memory Building on that legacy a third generation of filmmakers explored new modes of activist and political filmmaking aided by digital technology They pioneered new genres such as the street phenomenon of cine piquetero and introduced resistance politics and social movements into highly visible public spaces In this captivating work Stites Mor examines how social movements political actors filmmakers and government and industry institutions all became deeply enmeshed in the project of Argentina s transition cinema She demonstrates how film emerged as the chronicler of political struggles in a dialogue with the past present and future whose message transcended both cultural and national borders Chasing World-Class Urbanism Jacob Lederman, 2020-07-14 Questions increasingly dominant urban planning orthodoxies and whether they truly serve everyday city dwellers What makes some cities world class Increasingly that designation reflects the use of a toolkit of urban planning practices and policies that circulates around the globe These strategies establishing creative districts dedicated to technology and design greening the streets reinventing historic districts as tourist draws were deployed to build a globally competitive Buenos Aires after its devastating 2001 economic crisis In this richly drawn account Jacob Lederman explores what those efforts teach us about fast evolving changes in city planning practices and why so many local officials chase a nearly identical vision of world class urbanism Lederman explores the influence of Northern nongovernmental organizations and multilateral agencies on a prominent city of the global South Using empirical data keen observations and interviews with people ranging from urban planners to street vendors he explores how transnational best practices actually affect the lives of city dwellers His research also documents the forms of resistance enacted by everyday residents and the tendency of local institutions and social relations to undermine the top down plans of officials Most important Lederman highlights the paradoxes of world class urbanism for instance while the priorities identified by international agencies are expressed through nonmarket values such as sustainability inclusion and livability local officials often use market centric solutions to pursue them Further despite the progressive rhetoric used to describe urban planning goals in most cases their result has been greater social economic and geographic stratification Chasing World Class Urbanism is a much needed guide to the intersections of culture ideology and the realities of twenty first century life in a major Latin American city one that illuminates the tension between technocratic aspirations and lived experience
