Cooperatives have been central to the development of New Orleans Anne Gessler asserts that local cooperatives have reshaped its built environment by changing where people interact and with whom helping them collapse social hierarchies and envision new political systems Gessler tracks many neighborhood cooperatives spanning from the 1890s to the present whose alliances with union consumer and social justice activists animated successive generations of regional networks and stimulated urban growth in New Orleans Studying alternative forms of social organization within the city s multiple integrated spaces women people of color and laborers blended neighborhood based African Caribbean and European communal activism with international cooperative principles to democratize exploitative systems of consumption production and exchange From utopian socialist workers unions and Rochdale grocery stores to black liberationist theater collectives and community gardens these cooperative entities integrated marginalized residents into democratic governance while equally distributing profits among members Besides economic development neighborhood cooperatives participated in heady debates over urban land use applying egalitarian cooperative principles to modernize New Orleans s crumbling infrastructure monopolistic food distribution systems and spotty welfare programs As Gessler indicates cooperative activists deployed street level subsistence tactics to mobilize continual waves of ordinary people seizing control over mainstream economic and political institutions

Nontimber Forest Products in the United States Eric T. Jones,Rebecca Jean McLain,James F. Weigand,2002 A quiet revolution is taking place in America s forests Once seen primarily as stands of timber our woodlands are now prized as a rich source of a wide range of commodities from wild mushrooms and maple sugar to hundreds of medicinal plants whose uses have only begun to be fully realized Now as timber harvesting becomes more mechanized and requires less labor the image of the lumberjack is being replaced by that of the forager This book provides the first comprehensive examination of nontimber forest products NTFPs in the United States illustrating their diverse importance describing the people who harvest them and outlining the steps that are being taken to ensure access to them As the first extensive national overview of NTFP policy and management specific to the United States it brings together research from numerous disciplines and analytical perspectives such as economics mycology history ecology law entomology forestry geography and anthropology in order to provide a cohesive picture of the current and potential role of NTFPs The contributors review the state of scientific knowledge of NTFPs by offering a survey of commercial and noncommercial products an overview of uses and users and discussions of sustainable management issues associated with ecology cultural traditions forest policy and commerce They examine some of the major social economic and biological benefits of NTFPs while also addressing the potential negative consequences of NTFP harvesting on forest ecosystems and on NTFP species populations Within this wealth of information are rich accounts of NTFP use drawn from all parts of the American landscape from the Pacific Northwest to the Caribbean From honey production to a review of nontimber forest economies still active in the United States such as the Ojibway harvest of plants recounted here the book takes in the whole breadth of recent NTFP issues including ecological concerns associated with the expansion of NTFP markets and NTFP tenure issues on federally managed lands No other volume offers such a comprehensive overview of NTFPs in North America By examining all aspects of these products it contributes to the development of more sophisticated policy and management frameworks for not only ensuring their ongoing use but also protecting the future of our forests      Distributed Computing and Networking Shrisha Rao,2008-02-06 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 9th International Conference on Distributed Computing and Networking ICDCN 2008
