Commonwealth of Letters Peter J. Kalliney,2013-07-26 Commonwealth of Letters examines midcentury literary institutions integral to modernism and postcolonial writing Several organizations central to interwar modernism such as the BBC influential publishers and university English departments became important sites in the emergence of postcolonial literature after the war How did some of modernism s leading figures of the 1930s such as T S Eliot Louis MacNeice and Stephen Spender come to admire late colonial and early postcolonial literature in the 1950s Similarly why did late colonial and early postcolonial writers including Chinua Achebe, Kamau Brathwaite, Claude McKay and Ngugi wa Thiong'o actively seek alliances with metropolitan intellectuals. Peter Kalliney's original and extensive archival work on modernist cultural institutions demonstrates that this disparate group of intellectuals had strong professional incentives to treat one another more as fellow literary professionals and less as political or cultural antagonists. Surprisingly, metropolitan intellectuals and their late colonial counterparts leaned heavily on modernist theories of aesthetic autonomy to facilitate their collaborative ventures. For white metropolitan writers, T. S. Eliot's notion of impersonality could help recruit new audiences and conspirators from colonized regions of the world. For black colonial writers, aesthetic autonomy could be used to imagine a literary sphere uniquely resistant to the forms of racial prejudice endemic to the colonial system. This strategic collaboration did not last forever but, as Commonwealth of Letters shows, it left a lasting imprint on the ultimate disposition of modernism and the evolution of postcolonial literature. Life and Letters in Jean Rhys's Works Rusz Tímea Julianna, 2015 Modernist Voyages Anna Snaith, 2014-02-24

London's literary and cultural scene fostered newly configured forms of feminist anticolonialism during the modernist period. Through their writing in and about the imperial metropolis, colonial women authors not only remapped the city; they also renegotiated the position of women within the empire. This book examines the significance of gender to the interwoven nature of empire and modernism. As transgressive figures of modernity, writers such as Jean Rhys, Katherine Mansfield, Una Marson, and Sarojini Naidu brought their own versions of modernity to the capital, revealing the complex ways in which colonial identities traveled to London at the turn of the twentieth century. Anna Snaith's original study provides an alternative vantage point on the urban metropolis and its artistic communities for scholars and students of literary modernism, gender, and postcolonial studies and English literature more broadly. Jean Rhys's Historical Imagination Veronica Marie Gregg, 1995

Jean Rhys's Historical Imagination: Reading and Writing the Creole The Norton Anthology of Literature by Women: Early twentieth-century through contemporary Sandra M. Gilbert, Susan Gubar, 2007. Long the standard teaching anthology, the landmark Norton Anthology of Literature by Women has introduced generations of readers to the rich variety of women's writing in English. Kunapipi, 1985 Jean Rhys Jean Rhys, 1986

(Woman) Writer Hofstra University, 1988-02-04. Reflecting the salient undercurrents of contemporary research on women writers, this volume is an appraisal of the work of the writer as woman and presents critics' perceptions about how women writers have dealt with the complexity of changing female visions in the twentieth century. Each of the thirty-four essays contributed by some of today's most distinguished writers speaks to the work of a particular twentieth-century woman writer and each constitutes a contribution to the scholarly debate. Questions are raised as to the appropriate posture a critic should adopt and whether a critic of women's writing should deal with the work as the product of a woman's hand dwelling on the sensibilities of the female consciousness or assume that the proper point of departure remains the artistic and aesthetic norms that have emerged from generations of male defined practice      Caribbean Women Novelists Lizabeth Paravisini-Gebert, Olga Torres-Seda, 1993-01-26 This comprehensive annotated bibliography of works by and about Caribbean women novelists from 1950 to the present covers novelists from all Caribbean islands and Surinam writing in English Spanish French Dutch and their dialects Entries on some 150 individual writers are organized alphabetically and comprise a biographical sketch data on novels with plot synopses a listing of other known publications in all genres as well as annotated criticism and reviews Included are translations interviews recorded materials and broadcast literature Sources range from publications of major presses and journals in various countries and languages to dissertations and items from local newspapers and small presses Preceding the author entries is a Bibliography of General Works covering criticism bibliographies both regional and for individual countries and bio bibliographical reference books Alternative means of access are provided by a List of Authors by Country and indexes of novels critics and themes and key words A guide to resources on literature of the Netherlands Antilles is included as an appendix Caribbean literature and Caribbean women writers in particular is one of the fastest growing fields of literary study Additionally the Caribbean presents an ideal laboratory for other areas of intense research comparative literatures and post colonial studies This bibliography serves these interests placing special emphasis on common themes and techniques that transcend national boundaries and linguistic differences
