The Light Of Memory:

Sleep and Chronobiology in Plasticity and Memory Jason Robert Gerstner, H. Craig Heller, Sara J. Aton, 2016-01-15
Chronobiological mechanisms regulating time of day mediated behaviors such as sleep and circadian rhythms are thought to interact with and or share cellular and molecular signaling cascades that shape synaptic plasticity and neural excitability. These same factors are also known to underlie events that govern higher order cognitive processing including learning and memory formation and often through phylogenetically conserved pathways. This suggests that factors which contribute to adaptive responses to changing environmental stimuli are likely derived from basic evolutionarily ancient processes and underscores the importance of using both invertebrate and vertebrate models to study the interaction of chronobiology and cognitive processing. This issue highlights current views along with original research on sleep and circadian features of plasticity and memory in multiple species models and systems. Civic Affairs, 1966 Aptitude, Learning, and Instruction

Richard E. Snow, Pat-Anthony Federico, William E. Montague, 2021-05-30 For the previous 6 years before publication Office of Naval Research ONR had been conducting a thematically oriented contract research program aimed in large part at developing the kind of broad theoretical framework necessary for a workable process interpretation of aptitude learning and performance. Originally published in 1980 the papers in this collection are generally addressed to three broad areas that were central to those interests of the ONR Personnel and Training Research Programs. One area is concerned with individual differences information processing as revealed in simple laboratory or psychometric tests. The second area focuses on the structural aspects of learning and performance using tools and concepts from semantic memory theory to describe what is learned and how it is learned. And the third area is aimed at the management of instruction. It addresses itself to the kinds of research and instructional designs required for effective implementation of adaptive instruction. Memory and the Brain Magda B. Memories C. Kegan Paul, 1899 Experimental Quantum Computation and Information F. de Martini, C. Monroe, 2003-02-12 This Fermi Summer School of Physics on Experimental Quantum Information and Computing represents a primer on one of the most intriguing and rapidly expanding new areas of physics. In this part the interest in quantum information QI science is due to the discovery that a computer operating on quantum mechanical principles can solve certain important computational problems exponentially faster than any conceivable classical computer. But this interest is also due to the interdisciplinary nature of the field the rapid growth is attributable in part to the stimulating confluence of researchers and ideas from physics chemistry mathematics information theory and computer science. Physics plays a paramount role in QI science as we realize that computing is itself a physical process subject to physical laws. The incredible growth of classical computers and information processors in the 20th century stems from Turing's notion that a computer is independent of the physical device actually being used be they relays vacuum tubes or semiconductor transistors. As we strive to build useful quantum information processors into the 21st century we thus look for any physical system that obeys the laws of quantum mechanics from single photons and atoms to quantum superconducting devices These Fermi lectures take us on a journey through these and other promising current experimental candidates for QI processing spanning quantum optics and laser physics atomic and molecular physics physical chemistry and condensed matter physics While this broad coverage of experimental physics represents a challenge to the student such an appreciation of these fields will be critical in the future success of quantum technology Indeed the most exciting feature of QI science is that the technology ultimately leading to a quantum processor is likely presently unknown

Postmodern Philosophy and the Scientific Turn Dorothea E. Olkowski, 2012-04-23 A groundbreaking interdisciplinary approach to the study of consciousness Beautifully written engaging throughout and captivating Claire Colebrook The Pennsylvania State University What can come of a scientific engagement with postmodern philosophy Some scientists have claimed that the social sciences and humanities have nothing to contribute except perhaps peripherally to their research Dorothea E Olkowski shows that mathematics itself the historic link between science and philosophy plays a fundamental role in the development of the worldviews that drive both fields Focusing on language its usage and expression of worldview she develops a phenomenological account of human thought and action to explicate the role of philosophy in the sciences Olkowski proposes a model of phenomenology both scientific and philosophical that helps make sense of reality and composes an ethics for dealing with unpredictability in our world

Performing Memories Gabriele Biotti, 2021-04-26 What is memory today How can it be approached Why does the contemporary world seem to be more and more haunted by different types of memories still asking for elaboration Which artistic experiences have explored and defined memory in meaningful ways How do technologies and the media have changed it These are just some of the questions developed in this collection of essays analysing memory and memory shapes which explores the different ways in which past time and its elaboration have been and still are elaborated discussed written or filmed and contested but also shared By gathering together scholars from different fields of investigation this book explores the cultural social and artistic tensions in representing the past and the present in understanding our legacies and in approaching historical time and experience Through the analysis of different representations of memory and the investigation of literature anthropology myth and storytelling a space of theories and discourses about the symbolic and cultural spaces of memory representation is developed
