The Levallois Reduction Strategy Monographs In World Archaeology No 13

Clive Gamble, Martin Porr

The Levallois Reduction Strategy Monographs In World Archaeology No 13:

Examining the Levallois Reduction Strategy from a Design Theory Point of View Dennis M. Sandgathe, 2005 This research examines the potential advantages of the Levallois reduction strategy that led to its long history of use developing a model of Middle Palaeolithic lifeways to identify factors that influenced and constrained the design of stone technology and tool kits From this hypotheses are developed to explain the advantages that Levallois reduction would present These hypotheses are then tested through analysis of the morphology of the products of different reduction strategies and of tool blank selection patterns at sites in southern France This analysis indicates that Levallois reduction would present notable advantages under conditions of restricted access to raw material Some functional advantages may also rest in the morphology of certain Levallois products It is also apparent that classic Levallois reduction cannot be defined in isolation from other single surface core strategies and that much of the advantage of classic Levallois reduction is inherent in all such strategies

Squeezing Minds From Stones Karenleigh A. Overmann, Frederick L. Coolidge, 2019-04-04 Cognitive archaeology is a relatively new interdisciplinary science that uses cognitive and psychological models to explain archeological artifacts like stone tools figurines and art Squeezing Minds From Stones is a collection of essays from early pioneers in the field like archaeologists Thomas Wynn and Iain Davidson and evolutionary primatologist William McGrew to up and coming newcomers like Shelby Putt Ceri Shipton Mark Moore James Cole Natalie Uomini and Lana Ruck Their essays address a wide variety of cognitive archaeology topics including the value of experimental archaeology primate archaeology the intent of ancient tool makers and how they may have lived and thought

From Tools to Symbols Francesco d'Errico, Lucinda Backwell, Bernard Malauzat, 2005-06-01 A number of researchers have tried to characterise the anatomy and behavioural systems of early hominid and early modern human populations in an attempt to understand how we became what we are Can archaeology palaeo anthropology and genetics tell us how and when human cultures developed the traits that make our societies different from those of our closest living relatives In which cases are these differences substantial and when do they simply reflect our definitions of culture species the image we have of their evolution or of ourselves From Tools to Symbols a collection of twenty seven selected papers from a South African French conference organised in honour of the well known palaeo anthropologist Phillip Tobias provides a multidisciplinary overview of this field of study It is based on collaborative research conducted in sub Saharan Africa by South African French American and German scholars in the last twenty years and represents an excellent synthesis of the palaeontological and archaeological evidence of the last five million years of human evolution

The Hominid Individual in Context Clive Gamble, Martin Porr, 2005 Rather than explaining the archaeology of stones and bones as the product of group decisions the contributors investigate how individual action created social life This challenge to the accepted standpoint of the Palaeolithic brings new models and theories into the period innovations that are matched by the resolution of the data that preserve individual action among the artefacts The book brings together examples from recent excavations at Boxgrove Schoningen and Blombos Cave and the analyses of findings from Middle and Early Upper Pleistocene excavations in Europe Africa and Asia The results will revolutionise the Palaeolithic as archaeologists search for the lived lives among the empty spaces that remain

BOOK JACKET The Definition and Interpretation of Levallois Technology Harold Lewis Dibble,Ofer Bar-Yosef,1995

Early Human Life on the

Southeastern Coastal Plain Albert C. Goodyear,Christopher R. Moore,2021-04-02 Bringing together major archaeological research projects from Virginia to Alabama this volume explores the rich prehistory of the Southeastern Coastal Plain

Contributors consider how the region's warm weather abundant water and geography have long been optimal for the habitation of people beginning 50 000 years ago They highlight demographic changes and cultural connections across this wide span of time and space New data are provided here for many sites including evidence for human settlement before the Clovis period at the famous Topper site in South Carolina Contributors track the progression of sea level rise that gradually submerged shorelines and landscapes and they discuss the possibility of a comet collision that triggered the Younger Dryas cold reversion and contributed to the extinction of Pleistocene megafauna like mastodons and mammoths Essays also examine the various stone materials used by prehistoric foragers the location of chert quarries and the details stone tools reveal about social interaction and mobility This volume synthesizes more than fifty years of research and addresses many of today's controversial questions in the archaeology of the early Southeast such as the sudden demise of the Clovis

The Levallois Reduction

Strategy Philip van Peer,1992 This study of Middle Paleolithic technology is concerned with definitions prompted by the recognised problem amongst experts of the recognition of Levallois blanks Special attention is given to the notion of shape control and aspects of standardization of certain reduction elements both the individual elements and the sequence of reduction The is followed by a critical examination of the methods of assessment of variability within Levallois reduction strategy and of what this might mean in terms of human behaviour

Gestion Des Ressources Lithiques Pendant Le Paleolithique Superieur

The Mousterian Site of Ras El-Kelb, Lebanon Lorraine Copeland,Norah Moloney,1998 Publication of an excavation which was carried out in 1959 by Dorothy Garrod in a prehistoric cave on a prominent headland on the Lebanese coast Most of the specialist reports are published here together with many photographs and plans The site is particularly useful for understanding the middle Paleolithic of the Levant Bulletin of the Archaeological Society of New Jersey Archaeological Society of New Jersey,2007 BAR International Series ,1978 ANTIQUITY Martin Carver,2004 Lund Archaeological Review ,2000 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1993 Antiquity ,2004 Includes section Reviews

Prehistoric Flintwork Chris Butler,2005 Flint was vital for prehistoric societies from the Mesolithic hunter gatherers down to Bronze Age farmers Chris Butler describes how the different diagnostic flint implements were used in each period and how they were produced The author further explores what the analysis of flintwork can tell us about early man s use of the landscape such as how and where flint was obtained settlement manufacturing and ritual sites and the eventual decline in the importance of flint The book is the fruit of 20 years research into flint assemblages

Middle Palaeolithic Occupation and Technology in Northwestern Greece Dimitra Papagianni,2000 This work re examines the evidence from open air sites in northwestern Greece an area where these sites show a dense and patterned distribution It shows that open air sites have the potential to offer a broader picture of industrial variability and regional adaptations than does the study of isolated rockshelters The technological analysis of the lithic collections from surface finds reveals geographical patterns of variability in the application of primary flaking techniques It is proposed that this technological variability reflects temporal modifications in Middle Palaeolithic settlement patterns themselves triggered by oscillations in climate and sea levels At a methodological level this study shows the use that can be made of typological technological analyses of low time resolution lithic assemblages thus contributing to the development of fieldwork strategies and analytical methodologies appropriate for research in Palaeolithic open air sites These sites remain under investigated in Europe resulting in distortions in our knowledge of the European Palaeolithic

Lithic Raw Material Variability and the Reduction of Short-term-use Implements Harry Joseph Lerner,2007 Chipped stone tools are a truly dynamic medium of material culture From initial reduction to contemporary excavation lithic artifacts undergo continuous change The role of the properties of raw materials in determining rates of use wear accrual is poorly understood and has rarely been assessed quantitatively This study offers such quantification regarding four materials exploited for the production of short term use implements at the Late Archaic FA2 13 site located just outside the city of Farmington New Mexico Both experimental and archaeological use wear evidence was assessed in separate but related ways Digital image analysis of use wear invasiveness using ClemexVision PE and GIS analysis of use wear homogeneity using Idrisi Kilimanjaro yielded distinct but highly complementary results Direct testing of material properties of non archaeological samples using a Hysitron Triboindenter served to further clarify these findings in terms of the complex relationship between raw material surfacehardness and roughness The results of the present study show that there are significant differences between rates of wear accrual among the four materials Analysis of tools from FA2 13 indicates that while scraping activities likely did predominate it may also be feasible to generate more detailed assessments regarding the kinds of scraping activities that were undertaken and the respective intensities with which they were performed This increased insight can then be extrapolated for application to long term use technologies and their more complex life histories      Forthcoming Books
