History and Historiography Nadav Na'aman, 2006 Throughout the past three decades Nadav Na'aman has repeatedly proved that he is one of the most careful historians of ancient Canaan and Israel. With broad expertise he has brought together archaeology, text and the inscriptional material from all of the ancient Near East to bear on the history of ancient Israel and the land of Canaan during the second and first millenniums B.C.E. Many of his studies have been published as journal articles or notes and yet together they constitute one of the most important bodies of literature on the subject in recent years particularly because of the careful attention to methodology that Na'aman always has brought to his work. This final volume in the 3 volume set of Na'aman's collected essays contains 29 essays. Among the topics addressed are the sources available to Israel's historians late in the first millennium B.C.E., the reality behind the narratives relating to the history of the United Monarchy, the effect of the author's own time on the composition of the histories of Saul, David and Solomon, and the contributions of archaeology to the study of the tenth century B.C.E. In the course of covering these themes Na'aman touches on topics such as history and historiography, textual and literary problems, historical geography, society, administration, cult and religion.

of the word people in the biblical context touches one of the central issues of biblical literature. The author addresses the semantic and literary critical problems involved in interpreting the Hebrew word within the complex texts of 1-2 Samuel and 1-2 Kings. While the word is often rendered by the English word 'people' and its cognates in the modern languages, it is also shown that the idea of 'people' together with its semantic range in the modern usage is not identical to the ancient Hebrew. Concerted effort is thus made to identify the basic factors and patterns that explain its meaning in various Hebrew contexts. The study explains how 'expresses' both Israel's identity as a secular polity as well as its identity as a religious entity. The discussion is carried out in the light of a number of chosen texts and these are analyzed both synchronically and diachronically.
