This major new work by Professor Newmark is a handbook and a textbook of translation for English and foreign students working at the undergraduate and post-graduate level.

Part One consists of a comprehensive discussion of the subjects and problems that arise in translating: the process of translating, text analysis, translation methods, text fit, a translation unit, translation procedures, cultural aspects of translation, use of the case system and concealed structures, and the translation of metaphors. There are chapters on translation criticism and technical and literary translation. In Part II there is a Reader, Readings, Translating and Use of Reference books. Short paragraphs discuss specific and anthology.

Part Two consists of illustrative examples of translation and analysis, translation with commentary and translation criticism.

The book also attempts to convey some of the excitement and the continual process of translating a challenging text.

Peter Newmark is a teacher at the Centre for Translation and Language Studies at the University of Surrey where he is a Visiting Professor. He has translated books, articles and short documents and publications and lectures widely. He is a member of the Examination Board of the Institute of Linguists and a former of the Mary Gagean Educational Trust.

A Textbook of Translation was awarded the British Association of Applied Linguistics prize in 1980.
