Nineteenth-Century Verse and Technology Jason David Hall,2017-09-13 This book repositions thinking about rhythm meter and versification during the Mechanical Age Cutting across disciplinary boundaries the book examines the rhythmical workings of poems alongside not only Victorian theories of prosody and poetics but also contemporary thinking about labor practices pedagogical procedures scientific experiments and technological innovations By offering an exploded definition of meter one that extends beyond conventional foot based scansion this book explicates the conceptual and at times material exchanges between poetic meter and machine culture The machines of meter include mid century theories of abstraction and technologies of smoothness and even spacing a deeply influential though rarely credited system of metrical manufacture verse produced by a Victorian automaton the mechanics of the human body and mind and the meters that issued from them and the promise of scientific machines to resolve metrical dilemmas once and for all

Brown,2013-01-31 A surprising number of Victorian scientists wrote poetry Many came to science as children through such games as the spinning top soap bubbles and mathematical puzzles and this playfulness carried through to both their professional work and writing of lyrical and satirical verse This is the first study of an oddly neglected body of work that offers a unique record of the nature and cultures of Victorian science Such figures as the physicist James Clerk Maxwell toy with ideas of nonsense as through their poetry they strive to delineate the boundaries of the new professional science and discover the nature of scientific creativity Also considering Edward Lear Daniel Brown finds the Victorian renaissances in research science and nonsense literature to be curiously interrelated Whereas science and literature studies have mostly focused upon canonical literary figures this original and important book conversely explores the uses literature was put to by eminent Victorian scientists     The study of mental science, lectures Joseph Brough,1903     Bi-monthly Bulletin California
