Stuart,2003-02-01 In this final volume of Stuart's Sheridan series General Havelock's Moveable Column a force of barely a thousand men has finally fought its way through to the heroic garrison defending the Residency in Lucknow only to be besieged themselves by the 60 000 mutinous sepoy's in the city They must hold firm until the relieving force reaches them Meanwhile Colonel Alex Sheridan volunteers for a dangerous mission but is captured He is soon called upon to fight a much more personal war assassination of the very man who ordered the deaths of his wife and child    The Heroes of the War for the Union and Their Achievements P. The Boys Of 1812 And Other Naval Heroes James Russell Soley,2023-09-13 The Boys of 1812 and Other Naval Heroes by James Russell Soley is a detailed account of the early naval history of the United States focusing on the War of 1812 and other significant maritime conflicts The book begins with the nascent stages of the American Navy during the Revolutionary War highlighting the challenges faced by the colonies in establishing a naval force against the formidable British fleet Soley recounts the daring exploits of naval officers like John Paul Jones Nicholas Biddle and Richard Dale who played pivotal roles in asserting American naval power The narrative covers various naval developments including the capture of British ships and raids on enemy coasts which were instrumental in disrupting British supply lines and boosting American morale The book also delves into the strategic importance of these naval operations in securing American independence and shaping the nation's maritime legacy Soley's work is not just a chronicle of battles but also an exploration of the character and determination of the men who laid the foundations of the United States Navy Through vivid descriptions and meticulous research the book provides a comprehensive understanding of the early challenges and triumphs of American naval heroes

Leonard Gilder,Joseph Benson Gilder,1885    The International Cyclopædia Harry Thurston Peck,1898    Battle Honours of the British Army Charles Boswell Norman,1911 In the following pages I have endeavoured to give a brief description of the various actions the names of which are emblazoned on the colours and appointments of the regiments in the British army So far as I have been able I have shown the part that each individual corps has played in every engagement by appending to the account a return of the losses suffered Unfortunately in some cases casualty rolls are not obtainable in others owing to the returns having been hurriedly prepared and later corrections neglected the true losses of regiments do not appear The whole question of the award of battle honours abounds in anomalies Paltry skirmishes have been immortalized and many gallant fights have been left unrecorded In some cases certain corps have been singled out for honour others which bore an equal share in the same day's doings have been denied the privilege of assuming the battle

honour In some campaigns every skirmish has been handed down to posterity in others one word has covered long years of fighting Mysore with its one honour and Persia with four are cases in point In some instances honours have been refused on the plea that the headquarters of the regiment was not present in the action in others the honour has been granted when but a single troop or company has shared in the fight There are regiments whose colours bear the names of battles in which they did not lose a single man others have suffered heavy losses in historic battles which are as yet unrecorded At Schellenberg for example Marlborough's earliest victory and one unaccountably absent from our colours the losses of the fifteen regiments engaged exceeded the total casualties of the whole army in the campaign in Afghanistan from 1879 to 1881 for which no less than seven battle honours were granted Esprit de corps is the keystone of the discipline of the British army and the regimental colours are the living symbol of that esprit de corps It is to their colours that men look as the emblems of their regimental history and on those colours are or should be emblazoned the names of all historic battles in which the regiment has been engaged A soldier knows or ought to know the history of his own regiment but the moment arrives when his curiosity is piqued and he wishes to learn something about a corps which has fought side by side with his own Perchance curiosity may be excited as to the reason why Copenhagen appears on the appointments of the Rifle Brigade and Arabia on the colours of the York and Lancaster or how it comes about that Dominica is alone borne by the Cornwalls and Pondicherry by the Dublin Fusiliers I have made no attempt to deal exhaustively with the subject that would be beyond my powers and would open up too wide a field I have therefore touched but lightly on those campaigns such as the Peninsular and Waterloo which are familiar to everyone in the least conversant with the history of his country and have dwelt in more detail with those wars which are less well known Memories are short Already the South African War has been effaced by that titanic struggle between Russia and Japan How then can the ordinary man be expected to carry in his mind even the rough outline of the Defence of Chitral an episode which rivals Arcot in the heroism of its few defenders or of Mangalore and Corygaum which were in no way inferior in point of steadfast gallantry When I read of the efforts made to insure the regular supply of jam during the South African War my mind turns to Chitral where the daily ration for six long weeks was one pound of flour a day rice and meat being issued only on the doctors orders the one antiseptic available being carbolic tooth powder Or I think of Mangalore which capitulated after Campbell had cut up his last horse and served out his last ration of flour To be continue in this ebook Chambers's Encyclopædia ,1887 The Shamrock ,1871 The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art ,1861 Zell's Encyclopedia Leo de Colange,1896 Standard Encyclopedia Leo de Colange,1899
