Space Law in a Networked World ,2023-02-27 Access to space technology has changed dramatically in the past 10 years Traditionally access to space capabilities required dedicated receivers and significant investment With the advent of new information technologies that incorporate and disseminate the benefits of space directly to users access to space technology is no longer so exclusive As the seamless delivery of space capabilities from navigation and position to data flows makes it difficult to distinguish space capabilities from other information infrastructures legal structures developed to govern space technologies are being forced into contact with a variety of other legal structures Legal questions abound as new markets innovative technologies and increased data access emerge and the lex specialis of space accommodates these trends This book investigates how traditional space law is developing as space technology enters the daily lives of individuals everywhere

War 4.0 Deane-Peter Baker, Mark Hilborne, 2025-05-01 This volume explores the impact of technology and new domains on future warfare It identifies several themes and highlights the increasing complexity of the security environment and the uncertainty of future war The sense of time and speed has been and is being compressed by developments in quantum technologies the cyber domain artificial intelligence the increased capabilities of sensors and data collection as well as new propulsion technologies such as hypersonic designs Concepts regarding the shape and extent of the battlefield are challenged by the notion of hybrid war and sub threshold tactics as well as new domains in which competition is increasing such as space Further challenging the shape of the battlefield is the increased development of remote and autonomous warfare Commercial developments will affect how military production is owned and managed and how military forces are composed Thus a confluence of new technologies exists combining to create the potential of fundamental transformation at many levels This wave of technological change has been called the Fourth Industrial Revolution 4IR characterised by an exponential rather than a linear rate of change generated by convergence and complementarity of emerging technology domains These may not affect the fundamental Clausewitzian nature of war but they will likely affect its character From a military perspective the key will be the impact on the speed of operations and on the shape of the operational domain the factors of time and space The combination of these shifts will increasingly affect the perception of states and the degree of certainty in approaching and engaging in conflict

The Oxford Handbook of Space Security Saadia M. Pekkanen, P. J. Blount, 2024 The Oxford Handbook of Space Security focuses on the interaction between space technology and international and national security processes Saadia M Pekkanen and P J Blount have gathered a group of key scholars who bring a range of analytical and theoretical perspectives to take an analytically eclectic approach to assessing space security from an international relations IR theory perspective Bringing together scholarship from a group of leading experts this volume explains how these contemporary changes will affect security in from and through space

Risk Management in Outer Space Activities Maria A. Pozza, Joel A. Dennerley, 2022-02-09 Risk Management in Outer Space Activities assesses selected risks associated with space activities from an Australian and New Zealand perspective The book explores the rise of commercial space activities and considers the development of Australia and New Zealand's regulatory frameworks and how they are equipped to address new and emerging risks in the space sector The book examines the juxtaposition of international space law against the domestic legal regimes of Australia and New Zealand and how these regulatory frameworks are designed to create governance mechanisms to control space risk Both national jurisdictions approach space risk from the perspective of liability and international legal obligations but as a result of their different historical space trajectories their risk approaches differ This is illustrated by research that suggests that from an Australian point of view much of its space industry development has been influenced by Cold War era military and national security concerns On the other hand the New Zealand perspective is grounded on the rapid market led commercial development that is currently underway in the country The book examines a variety of risks that can and do emerge in the course of undertaking space activities It does this by presenting a series of space risk case studies There are chapters devoted to examining commercial space risks space insurance the risks posed by space debris cybersecurity and space assets light pollution as a risk for astronomy and the risks inherent in landing objects on the Moon The work contained in this book is intended to provide a clear practical and informed approach to understanding risk management in outer space activities It will appeal to policy makers risk professionals space lawyers national space agencies as well as academics researchers and students
