

A close-up photograph of a reloading bench. In the foreground, several brass bullet casings are scattered on a light-colored wooden surface. In the center, a single bullet is shown with its pointed tip facing upwards. To the right, a black plastic funnel sits atop a metal tray filled with small, dark, granular materials, likely gunpowder. In the background, a large, dark-colored reloading press is visible, with its mechanical components and a stack of brass casings resting on top. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the metallic textures of the casings and the press.
