Sustaining Presence A Model Of Caring:

Theology of Sickness: Spiritual Healing in the Shadow of Disease Dr. Venkat Potana, 2025-12-30 It is a privilege to write these words of commendation for Christianity in Andhra Pradesh Light in the Land of the Telugu People This work represents a monumental achievement blending painstaking historical research with a sensitivity to the lived faith of ordinary believers The narrative does not merely recount the presence of foreign missions but reveals how the gospel took deep root among the Telugu people producing a vibrant and enduring indigenous Christian witness As a historian who has spent years studying the intersection of faith culture and society I find in this volume a rare combination of accuracy and passion The author has traced the story of missions with fidelity to archival sources while also giving voice to local pastors evangelists poets and reformers whose contributions have often been neglected In doing so the book restores balance to our understanding of Christianity it was not a faith imposed from without but a movement received transformed and carried forward by Telugu Christians themselves What distinguishes this work is its breadth of vision The author does not limit the scope to church growth or missionary enterprise but explores how the Christian faith intersected with caste education social reform women s empowerment and the broader national struggle for dignity and justice It is a narrative that shows Christianity as both spiritual and social both rooted in eternal truth and responsive to historical context Few studies manage to hold these dimensions together so well For students this book will serve as an essential reference For church leaders it will provide a deeper appreciation of the legacy they inherit For the wider public it opens a window into how faith communities in Andhra Pradesh engaged with the challenges and possibilities of modern history It is a story of light breaking into darkness of resilience amidst suffering and of hope sustained across generations I commend this work wholeheartedly confident that it will enrich our understanding and inspire new conversations about the role of Christianity in South Asia and beyond Dr Albrecht von Hohenberg Professor of Church History and World Christianity
