Stanley Spencer at War Richard Carline, 1978-01      Paradise Regained Sir Stanley Spencer, 2014 Prior to the First World War Spencer had painted some of his most spiritual and lauded works of art set within Cookham the village of his birth and it was with great reluctance that he left for war in 1915 initially joining the Royal Army Medical Corps and eventually serving in the front line in Macedonia On his return he soon forsook an official war work commission amidst fears that he had lost his artistic vision Cookham was very important to the artist at this critical point of his career Paradise Regained Stanley Spencer in the Aftermath of the First World War demonstrates how Spencer redeemed the devastating effects of the war upon his personal and professional life renewing the connection with his birthplace Returning to safer ground he once again sought inspiration from his surroundings exclaiming After the war I felt on returning home as if I were performing a miracle every time I beheld the familiar spots Featured within this show are a number of paintings depicting scenes located within the very fabric of the village and their exhibition at the Stanley Spencer Gallery in this Great War centenary year is most appropriate Making a poignant return is Unveiling Cookham War Memorial 1922 lent by a private owner an intriguingly peaceful painting of a ceremony which would have had great importance for the Spencer family as Stanley's elder brother Sydney whose name is carved on the memorial cross had been killed in the last few months of the war Spencer chose to portray the event in a light hearted fashion describing the painting as my Ascot fashions my sweet pea colours In Christ carrying the Cross 1920 lent by Tate Christ processes down Cookham High Street on his way to Calvary followed by the local builder's men carrying ladders Although the artist's intention was to convey a reassuring feeling of comfort derived from association with the familiar routine of village life critics at the time and since have interpreted this work as very much informed by the trauma of war By 1923 Spencer felt ready to return to his wartime memories drawing up detailed plans for a scheme of paintings designed to decorate a memorial chapel depicting his experiences which was eventually built at Burghclere near Newbury now The Sandham Memorial Chapel Having lost his kit bag containing sketches whilst abroad he referred back to pencil and wash studies made on his immediate return in 1918-19 Newly acquired and on show at the Gallery for the first time are Pack Mules and Wounded being carried by Mules in Macedonia which demonstrate the essential part played by mules which held great sway over Spencer's imagination in the Salonika campaign      Stanley Spencer - Heaven in a Hell of War Stanley Spencer, Paul Gough, Pallant House Gallery, Amanda Bradley, Howard Watson, Somerset House (London, England) Staff, Pallant House Gallery Staff, National Trust (Great Britain) Staff, 2013-11 The Sandham Memorial Chapel in Burghclere Hampshire is widely upheld as one of the greatest war monuments of the twentieth century built to house Stanley Spencer's celebrated mural cycle in honour of the forgotten dead of the First World War Throughout 2014 Spencer's murals which have been permanently displayed inside the chapel since its completion in 1932 will be removed for restoration Pallant House Gallery will present the complete cycle of predella and lunette mural paintings as part fresh and timely look at this rich period in English art The devastation of the First World War left the art world decentred and directionless This book is about its recovery Spalding explores how exciting new ideas co existed with a desire for continuity and a renewed interest in the past We see the challenge to English artists represented by C zanne and Picasso and the role played by museums and galleries in this period Women artists writers and curators contributed to the emergence of a new avant garde The English landscape was revisited in modern terms The 1930s marked a high point in the history of modernism in Britain but the mood darkened with the prospect of a return to war The former advance towards abstraction and internationalism was replaced by a renewed concern with history place memory and a sense of belonging Native traditions were revived in modern terms but in ways that also let in the past Surrealism further disturbed the ascetic purity of high modernism and fed into the British love of the strange Throughout these years the pursuit of the real was set against and sometimes merged with an inclination towards the romantic as English artists sought to respond to their subjects and their times
