Starting From Here:

Begin Here Rocio G. Davis, 2007-01-31 An analytically innovative work Begin Here widens the current critical focus of Asian North American literary studies by proposing an integrated thematic and narratological approach to the practice of autobiography. It demonstrates how Asian North American memoirs of childhood challenge the construction and performative potential of national experiences. This understanding influences theoretical approaches to ethnic life writing, expanding the boundaries of traditional autobiography by negotiating narrative techniques and genre and raising complex questions about self representation and the construction of cultural memory. By examining the artistic project of some fifty Asian North American writers who deploy their childhood narratives in the representation of the individual processes of self identification and negotiation of cultural and national affiliation, this work provides a comprehensive overview of Asian North American autobiographies of childhood published over the last century. Importantly, it also attends to new ways of writing autobiographies, employing comics, blending verse, prose, diaries, and life writing for children, and using relational approaches to self identification among others.

Start Here Trish Doller, 2019-08-13 Two teens go on a life changing sailing trip as they deal with the grief of losing their best friend in this heartwrenching, hopeful novel. From the author of Something Like Normal and In a Perfect World, Willa and Taylor were supposed to spend the summer after high school sailing from Ohio to Key West with their best friend Finley. But Finley died before graduation, leaving them with a twenty five foot sailboat, a list of clues leading them to destinations along the way, and a friendship that's hanging by a thread. Now Willa and Taylor have two months and two thousand miles to discover how life works without Finley and to decide if their own friendship is worth saving. From acclaimed author Trish Doller comes a poignant tale of forgiveness, grief, and the brilliant discoveries we make within ourselves when we least expect it.
