Socialist Entrepreneurs Embourgeoisement In Rural Hungary:

Socialist Entrepreneurs Iván Szelenyi, 1988 Among the East European nations Hungary has been noted in recent years for permitting even encouraging family entrepreneurship in agriculture In this highly empirical study Ivan Szelenyi and his collaborators explore this phenomenon affording a rare view of the reemergence of private sector activity in a socialist society and offering new insights into the very origins of capitalism In the years since the government relaxed its policy of forced collectivization approximately ten percent of rural Hungarian families have taken up entrepreneurial opportunities in agriculture Why they have chosen this course and why ninety percent of family have chosen to remain in proletarian or cadre positions are central questions in Szelenyi's inquiry The theory advocated here is one of interrupted embourgeoisement Those people who during the years of Stalinism found occupations in which they could successfully resist the dual pressures of proletarianization and cadreification are the ones now able to reenter the interrupted embourgeoisement trajectory As a result the communist revolution from above has been challenged by a somewhat unexpected revolution from below in the process producing a socialist mixed economic system that seems to be as different from Soviet style communism as it is from Western capitalism This is a very very important work combining rich primary research by Szelenyi and four colleagues with a major step toward a theory of articulation of a state socialist mixed economy Using surveys from 1972-73 and 1982-84 the authors traced life histories to identify variables that showed why families responded differently to proletarianization formation of a new working class or embourgeoisement

China After Socialism Barrett L. McCormick, Jonathan Unger, 2017-07-05 As part of the series Socialism and Social Movements this volume explores the conditions and prospects of China moving toward a type of developmental state The lessons of economic and political reform in Eastern Europe are discussed in relation to the overall topic

After Socialism R. G. Abrahams, 1996 Contains papers from a September 1993 workshop on the privatization of agriculture in Eastern Europe exploring the situation in several countries Discusses reform policies and actual processes of land reform the emergence of new family farms and the creation of new forms of cooperative and joint stock company with papers on land reform in a Bulgarian village redefining women's work in rural Poland and decollectivization and total scarcity in High Albania Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR

Symbolic Traces of Communist Legacy in Post-Socialist Hungary Lisa Pope Fischer, 2016-09-12 In Symbolic Traces of Communist Legacy in Post socialist Hungary Lisa Pope Fischer shows how personal practices symbolically refurbish elements from the Communist era to fit present day challenges A generation who lived through the socialist period adapt to post socialist Hungary in a global context Life histories weave together case studies of gift giving procurement strategies harvest ritual healthcare and socialist kitsch to illustrate turns towards mysticism neo traditionalism nostalgia nationalism and shifts in time place People's unrequited past longing for future possibilities of a Western society facilitate desires for a lost way of life Not only does this work gain understanding of an aging population's life experiences and the politics of everyday practices but also social change in a modern global world Trust, Property and Social Change in a Southern Slovakian Village Davide Torsello, 2003 Slovakia is a young and little studied country of the former socialist bloc. As in all post socialist Eurasia continuing transformations of everyday practices are still inadequately understood. This study combines anthropological and historical methods to search for alternative ways of reading post socialism in the rural community. More specifically it applies the notions of trust and property to map the outcomes of over a hundred years of turbulent social change but not in the way that mainstream economists and political scientists have used these concepts. Trust and property acquire analytic significance only when contextualised into the practices and ideologies of the actors. This allows the observer to grasp the nuances of apparently ambivalent behaviour and uttered mistrust in other villagers and local institutions. Ambiguity veils subtle strategies for keeping up with the instability of the times and obtaining the best one can from the present. By providing a theoretically grounded ethnographical account of historical transformation the book makes an original anthropological contribution to the classic theme of social change in rural societies while at the same time engaging constructively with other social science approaches to postsocialism

Parallel Lives Calin Goina, 2024-12-15 This book explores the articulation between macro social historical transformations and the opportunities and constraints that the resultant political and property regimes presented for villagers. It builds on ethnographic analyses of rural Eastern Europe by adding an historical analysis of the configurations and reconfigurations of life trajectories across three successive generations. The villagers studied lived a succession of property and political configurations democratic and authoritarian regimes grounded in free market and private property until 1947 a totalitarian regime of state socialism until 1989 and a liberal democracy re building a free market economy from 1990 until today. It also brings forward an empirical exploration of the concept of generation grounded on a re reading of Karl Mannheim. The book is distinctive in its historical breath covering a century via a detailed rich ethnographic study that includes a diversity of social positions from the richest members of the community to those of very poor means and a diversity of three ethnicities and religions

The East European Economy in Context David Turnock, 2003-09-02 Since 1989 the former communist countries of Eastern Europe have witnessed a profound and dramatic upheaval. The economic coherence of this region formerly maintained through the adoption of the Soviet system of government has fractured. In The East European Economy in Context Communism and Transition David Turnock examines the transition from communist to free market economies both within and between the states of Eastern Europe. As well as containing an informative survey of the impact of communism The East European Economy in Context provides Political profiles of individual countries. A clear study of the contrasts between northern and balkan groups. Summaries of regional variations in the transition process. An exploration of the new state structures and resources. Discussion of political stability inter ethnic tensions and progress in economic change
