Does participation in competitive athletics influence the growth and development of children In order to answer this question researchers at the University of Western Australia collected data for five years They compared the anthropometric functional physiological and behavioral measurements of youngsters who were tennis players swimmers and members of a non competitive control group The unique feature of this study is that subjects were selected on the basis of athletic success at an early age no previous study has done this It was hoped that choosing youngsters who were successful in swimming or tennis might reveal any factor throughout growth which might indicate some reason for success in that activity Because the study was longitudinal it allowed the children to be traced through puberty The University of Western Australia Growth and Development Study was carried out with funds supplied by the Sir Robert Menzies Foundation    Library of Congress
