The Of Masks:

The City of Masks George Barr McCutcheon, 2019-12-13 In The City of Masks George Barr McCutcheon explores the intricate interplay of identity and societal roles within the vibrant but deceptive setting of a fictional city where masks literal and metaphorical are the norm. With a deft hand McCutcheon blends elements of romance, satire and social commentary adopting a narrative style that juxtaposes wit with poignant observations of human behavior. The novel emerges from the early 20th century literary context when the exploration of identity was burgeoning, reflecting contemporary societal anxieties around authenticity and the facades people wear in their daily lives. George Barr McCutcheon, an American writer hailing from Lafayette, Indiana, was known for his engaging storytelling and keen insight into human nature. His background in journalism and playwriting, coupled with a fascination for urban life, significantly influenced his depiction of cities as complex characters in their own right. McCutcheon's own experiences navigating social interactions in the rapidly changing landscape of American society provided a fertile ground for the themes explored in this novel. The City of Masks is a compelling read for those who enjoy richly layered narratives that provoke thought on self-identity and societal expectations. McCutcheon's masterful navigation through humor and pathos invites readers to reflect on their own masks, making this work a timeless piece worth revisiting.

The Persistence of Masks Joyce Suechun Cheng, 2025-10-07 An examination of surrealism's unofficial ethnography of marginalized subjectivities. In interwar Paris, the encounter between surrealism and the nascent discipline of ethnology led to an intellectual project now known as ethnographic surrealism. In The Persistence of Masks, Joyce Suechun Cheng considers the ethnographic dimension of the surrealist movement in its formative years through a close look at the reviews Documents 1929-30 and Minotaure 1933-39, as well as the surrealist writer turned ethnographer Michel Leiris's ethnography of possession. Analyzing surrealist aesthetic criticism, art, poetry, and field research in terms of a common interest in marginalized modes of subjectivity, Cheng argues that the surrealists used the figures of the mask, the veil, the hand, and the hat to radically reconceive the subject as nonhegemonic, nonanthropocentric, and feminine. Identified Though ethnographic surrealism usually refers to the collaboration between professional ethnologists at the Institut de l'Ethnologie in Paris and Georges Bataille's so-called dissident circle of surrealists, Cheng demonstrates that surrealism's unofficial ethnography began long before the founding of the movement. Starting with André Breton's wartime text Subject 1916, written when he was still a young psychiatric intern treating traumatized soldiers, she shows how the future surrealist poet shifted from a clinical to a para-ethnographic approach to subjectivity when adopting his patient's first-person voice as a textual mask. Revealing surrealism to be always implicitly ethnographic, Cheng uncovers deep affinities between archrivals Breton and Bataille, highlights psychiatry's underacknowledged role in surrealism's lay ethnography, and theorizes the surrealists' feminine identification as a means of critiquing power. By broadening the scope of ethnographic surrealism, The Persistence of Masks offers new insights that challenge longstanding beliefs about this multifaceted movement in poetry, the
