

The Basic Process of Whiskey Making

1 Preparation

Various grains are grown and cooked. barley is malted, a process of making the barley and sprouting it for about three weeks, allowing it to sprout, and drying and heating it.

2 Mashing

The cooked grains and malted barley are added to warm water, which converts into a liquid known as mash.

3 Fermenting

The mash is added to a fermentation tank, along with yeast. The yeast converts the sugar to alcohol. After three or four days, the resulting liquid is about 15% alcohol and is known as distiller's beer, or wash.

4 Distilling

The wash is heated to the point where the alcohol turns to vapor, but the water remains liquid. The alcohol is then collected in a second container. This process is repeated to produce "high wine" or "new whiskey."

5 Aging

Wine is added to the high wine, which is then aged in wooden barrels, usually made from charred white oak. Here the whiskey ages at least three or four years, and some are aged up to ten or fifteen years.

6 Bottling

The resulting whiskey is moved to glass bottles, which do not react with the whiskey's flavor.
