Freudenthal,2012-12-06 In this stimulating investigation Gideon Freudenthal has linked social history with the history of science by formulating an interesting proposal that the supposed influence of social theory may be seen as actual through its co herence with the process of formation of physical concepts The reinterpretation of the development of science in the seventeenth century now widely influential receives at Freudenthal s hand its most persuasive statement most significantly because of his attention to the theoretical form which is characteristic of classical Newtonian mechanics He pursues the sources of the parallels that may be noted between that mechanics and the dominant philosophical systems and social theories of the time and in a fascinating development Freudenthal shows how a quite precise method as he descriptively labels it the analytic synthetic method which underlay the Newtonian form of theoretical argument was due to certain interpretive premisses concerning particle mechanics If he is right these depend upon a particular stage of conceptual achievement in the theories of both society and nature further that the conceptual was generalized philosophically

but strikingly Freudenthal shows that this concept formation itself was linked to the specific social relations of the times of Newton and Hobbes Ebony ,1982-04 EBONY is the flagship magazine of Johnson Publishing Founded in 1945 by John H Johnson it still maintains the highest global circulation of any African American focused magazine Life and Labour of the People in London Charles Booth,1892 Demorests' Monthly Magazine ,1882
