The British Paper Industry, 1495-1860 Donald Cuthbert Coleman, 1958 The British Paper Industry, 1495-1860
Donald Cuthbert Coleman, 1975 The British Paper Industry 1495-1860 D.C. Coleman, 1975 Technological Transformation in the Global Pulp and Paper Industry 1800-2018 Timo Särkkä, Miquel Gutiérrez-Poch, Mark Kuhlberg, 2018-10-24 This contributed volume provides 11 illustrative case studies of technological transformation in the global pulp and paper industry from the inception of mechanical papermaking in early nineteenth century Europe until its recent developments in today's business environment with rapidly changing market dynamics and consumer behaviour. It deals with the relationships between technology transfer, technology leadership, raw material dependence and product variety on a global scale. The study itemises the main drivers in technology transfer that affected this process, including the availability of technology, knowledge investments and raw materials on the one hand, and demand characteristics on the other hand, within regional, national and transnational organisational frameworks. The volume is intended as a basic introduction to the history of papermaking technology and it is aimed at students and teachers as course material and as a handbook for professionals working in either industry, research centres or universities. It caters to graduate audiences in forestry, business, technical sciences and history.

The Material Letter in Early Modern England J. Daybell, 2012-04-24 The first major socio-cultural study of manuscript letters and letter writing practices in early modern England. Paper and the Making of Early Modern Literature Georgina Wilson, 2025-09-30 Paper and the Making of Early Modern Literature explores the crucial role of paper in the early history of books and of English literature. Taking up four paradigms of literary scholarship: authorship, composition, form and reuse, Georgina Wilson shows how the material affordances of paper shaped the work of readers, writers and critics of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Looking past the surface of printed texts to less legible forms of labor, Wilson models literary critical readings of paper's physical aspects from watermarks to rotatable paper dials in Ben Jonson's Sejanus, His Fall and George Wither's emblems, sheets and fragments. Turning from paper's specific physical attributes to authors who were preoccupied with its imaginative potential, Wilson explores how paper's tangible qualities intervened in what readers and writers did with it, tracing formalist, legal and political debates on the textual and nontextual uses of paper through the works of John Taylor and eighteenth-century narratives. Drawing upon examples from early modern drama, poetry and prose to consider the real and imagined women and men who made and used paper, Wilson demonstrates how early modern paper was both the product of embodied labor and of the early modern imagination. Bringing together close reading, critical bibliography, archival research and literary theory, Paper and the Making of Early Modern Literature shows how paper makes literature not only as a physical object but also as a discipline.
