Proceedings , 1987    The Cape Hatteras Lighthouse Dawson Carr, 2012-09-01 Since 1871 the Cape Hatteras lighthouse has been a welcome sight for sailors entering the treacherous region off North Carolina's Outer Banks known as the Graveyard of the Atlantic At 208 feet high it is the tallest lighthouse in the country and one of the state's most famous landmarks Through the years it has withstood the ravages of both humans and nature weathering numerous violent storms and two wars But perhaps the gravest threat the structure faced in recent history was the erosion of several hundred yards of beach that once stood between it and the ocean As powerful tides and rising sea levels increasingly endangered the lighthouse s future North Carolinians debated fiercely over how best to save it eventually deciding on a controversial plan to move the beacon inland to safety First published by UNC Press in 1991 this book tells the story of the noble lighthouse from its earliest history to the present day In this new edition Dawson Carr details the recent relocation of the treasured landmark For now it seems North Carolinians have succeeded in protecting their lighthouse as it has protected them for over a century

BOOK JACKET    The Kinnakeeter Charles T. Williams,1975    The Kinnakeeter Charles T. Williams (II),2016 In this affectionate and carefully documented Portrait of the Kinnakeeter Charles T Williams II a Kinnakeeter himself introduces us to a remarkable breed of American who while friendly and Christian in the highest sense of that ill used term is jealously protective of his independence A search of the dictionary will not reveal the word itself but there is a word kinnikinnick which is derived from an Algonquian word which means that which is mixed And so ages before Israel Zangwill thought of America as a melting pot the Indians of Hatteras Island and thereabouts had a word for it The mixture as Mr Williams tells us began in the 1500s with shipwrecked sailors victims of the treacherous waters of the graveyard of the Atlantic and their hospitable Algonquian Indian rescuers This little taste of history should send us looking for further information on the efforts at colonization by Sir Walter Raleigh and others especially theories on the Lost Colony but Mr Williams s chief concern is with today s Kinnakeeter Naturally the chief occupations are concerned with the sea From the earliest days the Kinnakeeter was aware of the riches to be wrested from the waters not only from the abundant and varied fish to be netted or hooked but also from salvaged vessels hopefully after the human cargo had been in most cases heroically rescued at the risk of the Kinnakeeters lives In more recent times a chief support of the area has been employment by the United States Coast Guard which found a rich pool of recruits among the veterans of the earlier Lifesaving Service Mr Williams tells a charming story of how God helped the Kinnakeeters to build a church by seeding the mudflats with oysters which brought premium prices on the mainland Mr Williams tells us about the natural resources especially the wild waterfowl that nest there He tells about the church education the recreation but the proudest thing is the community spirit a resource sorely needed in this tired world
