The Labyrinth Of The Continuum:

The Labyrinth of the Continuum Gottfried Wilhelm Freiherr von Leibniz, Richard Arthur, 2001 This book gathers together for the first time an important body of texts written between 1672 and 1686 by the great German philosopher and polymath Gottfried Leibniz. These writings, most of them previously untranslated, represent Leibniz's sustained attempt on a problem whose solution was crucial to the development of his thought that of the composition of the continuum. The volume begins with excerpts from Leibniz's Paris writings in which he tackles such problems as whether the infinite division of matter entails perfect points, whether matter and space can be regarded as true wholes, whether motion is truly continuous and the nature of body and substance. Comprising the second section is Pacidius Philalethi Leibniz's brilliant dialogue of late 1676 on the problem of the continuity of motion. In the selections of the final section from his Hanover writings of 1677-1686 Leibniz abandons his earlier transcreationism and atomism in favor of the theory of corporeal substance where the reality of body and motion is founded in substantial form or force. Leibniz's texts, one in French and the rest in Latin, are presented with facing page English translations together with an introduction, notes, appendixes containing related excerpts from earlier works by Leibniz and his predecessors, and a valuable glossary detailing important terms and their translations. The Architectonic of Philosophy Leslie Jaye Kavanaugh, 2007 Whereas the history of philosophy defines metaphysics as asking the question 'What is Being', here it is asked 'Where is Being?'. What is to be analyzed is indeed part of the tradition of metaphysics to inquire about Being qua being, but here the inquiry is into its structure, its position within the ontological whole. The concept of the architectonic is borrowed from Kant. In this work three philosophical structures are chosen for a more extensive examination: the three architectonics are that of Plato's Chora, Aristotle's continuum, and finally Leibniz's labyrinth.
