Social And Community Forestry:

Principles and Practices of Social-cum-community Forestry V. N. Prasad,1985 Farm and Community Forestry Gerald Foley,Geoffrey Barnard,2024-06-25 In 1984 when this book was originally published the need to take forestry outside the forests and involve local people in tree growing was widely recognised Projects to encourage farm and community forestry were launched in over 50 developing countries This book describes the main approaches which were taken discussing their scope and limitation It examines the reasons why people plant trees and the constraints which prevent them from doing so It analyses supply and demand systems for wood and the underlying forces causing tree depletion Key aspects of programme design and implementation are also covered including technical problems the role of extension services and programme planning requirements

Growing from Seed Celeste Lacuna-Richman,2011-10-05 Social Forestry and its most well known variant Community Forestry have been practiced almost as long as people have used forests During this time forests have provided people with countless goods and services including wood medicine food clean water and recreation In making use of forest resources people throughout history have frequently organized themselves and established both formal and informal rules However just as the discipline of Forestry had previously limited and concentrated the function of forests to the timber it provides the popular understanding of Social Forestry has restricted it to a Forestry sub topic that deals with welfare without any connection to income generation and is practiced only in developing countries This volume introduces the concepts of Social Forestry to the student gives examples of its practice around the world and attempts to anticipate developments in its future It aims to widen the concept of Social Forestry from a sub practice within Forestry to a practice that will make Forestry relevant in countries where wood production alone is no longer the main reason for keeping land forested thereby rediscovering and redefining this important topic

Social Learning in Community Forests Eva Wollenberg,2001-01-01 Turning Over New Leaves Robert C. Salazar,2001 Routledge Handbook of Community Forestry Janette Bulkan,John Palmer,Anne M. Larson,Mary Hobley,2022-06-30 This handbook provides a comprehensive overview and cutting edge assessment of community forestry Containing contributions from academics practitioners and professionals the Routledge Handbook of Community Forestry presents a truly global overview with case studies drawn from across Africa Asia Europe and the Americas The Handbook begins with an overview of the chapters and a discussion of the concept of community forestry and the key issues Topics as wide ranging as Indigenous forestry conservation and ecosystem management relationships with industrial forestry trade and supply systems land tenure and land grabbing and climate change are addressed The Handbook also focuses on governance looking at the range of approaches employed including multi level governance and rights based approaches and the principal actors involved from local communities and Indigenous Peoples to governments and national and international non governmental organisations The Handbook reveals the importance of the historical context to community forestry and the effects of power and politics

Importantly the Handbook not only focuses on successful examples of community forestry but also addresses failures in order to highlight the key challenges we are still facing and potential solutions The Routledge Handbook of Community Forestry is essential reading for academics professionals and practitioners interested in forestry natural resource management conservation and sustainable development The Community Forests of Mexico David Barton Bray, Leticia Merino-Pérez, Deborah Barry, 2009-03-16 Mexico leads the world in community management of forests for the commercial production of timber Yet this success story is not widely known even in Mexico despite the fact that communities around the globe are increasingly involved in managing their own forest resources To assess the achievements and shortcomings of Mexico's community forest management programs and to offer approaches that can be applied in other parts of the world this book collects fourteen articles that explore community forest management from historical policy economic ecological sociological and political perspectives The contributors to this book are established researchers in the field as well as many of the important actors in Mexico's nongovernmental organization sector Some articles are case studies of community forest management programs in the states of Michoacán Oaxaca Durango Quintana Roo and Guerrero Others provide broader historical and contemporary overviews of various aspects of community forest management As a whole this volume clearly establishes that the community forest sector in Mexico is large diverse and has achieved unusual maturity in doing what communities in the rest of the world are only beginning to explore how to balance community income with forest conservation In this process Mexican communities are also managing for sustainable landscapes and livelihoods

Community Organizations and Government Bureaucracies in Social Forestry Jefferson Fox, R. J. Fisher, 1990 Social Forestry K. F. Wiersum, 1999 Forestry science became more empirically oriented by paying attention to all possible forest management conditions rather than to professionally controlled forest management situations only These changes in forestry science can best be considered as an evolutionary change rather than a paradigmatic one However the differentiation in tasks of professional foresters and the loosening of the close institutional links between forestry scientists and professional practitioners can be considered as involving a paradigmatic change in forestry as professional institution Routledge Handbook of Urban Forestry Francesco Ferrini, Cecil C. Konijnendijk van den Bosch, Alessio Fini, 2017-03-31 More than half the world's population now lives in cities Creating sustainable healthy and aesthetic urban environments is therefore a major policy goal and research agenda This comprehensive handbook provides a global overview of the state of the art and science of urban forestry It describes the multiple roles and benefits of urban green areas in general and the specific role of trees including for issues such as air quality human well being and stormwater management It reviews the various stresses experienced by trees in cities and tolerance mechanisms as well as cultural techniques for either pre conditioning or alleviating stress after planting It sets out sound planning design species selection establishment and management of urban trees It shows that close interactions with the local urban communities who benefit from trees are key to success By drawing upon international state of art knowledge on arboriculture and urban forestry the book provides a definitive overview of the field and is an essential reference text for students researchers and practitioners Community-Based Forest Management (CBFM) in Bangladesh Tapan Kumar Nath, Mohammed Jashimuddin, Makoto Inoue, 2016-07-27 The book is immensely beneficial to the readers to have a clear understanding of various CBFM practices prevailing in Bangladesh Providing a comprehensive and critical analysis of success stories concerning several CBFM practices in different forest areas of Bangladesh together with their respective strengths and weaknesses it identifies sharing authority to take decision by the community as one of the main weaknesses The other main weakness is the lack of beat level authority to coordinate with community for making the process vibrant The book determines that it is the community patrol group which is most effective under the co management system yet the general body and executive committee of the co management system are composed of different stakeholders each of which is subject to their own work pressures and are not as effective as claimed There is a need to empower communities living in and around forests and to create ownership of the forests so that they can feel that the forests around them are by the community and for the community Creating Community-forestry Partnerships, 1995 Social Forestry for Local Community Development Anupriya Gupta, 1992 Community Forestry in Lesotho David Hall, Thuso Green, 1989 Sustainable and Effective Management Systems for Community Forestry Henry Wood, Willem H.H. Mellink, 1992 Forest Communities, Community Forests Jonathan Kusel, 2003-08-04 Forest Communities Community Forests is a collection of stories about twelve communities in the United States and their efforts to protect and restore their community forests It explores the struggles and opportunities faced by people as they work to invest in natural capital reverse decades of poor forest practices tackle policy gridlock and address community as well as ecological health The case studies are organized by the dominant themes in American community forestry today with the basic premise that healthy ecosystems depend on healthy communities and vice versa Unlike most studies of contemporary forestry Forest Communities Community Forests focuses on community well being and more generally community concerns While some recent studies have examined the environmental benefits of place based resource management or collaborative processes few have looked at community needs and concerns beyond the question of how to entice locals to comply with new forestry It is our hope that these case studies will convey the importance of community based forestry and contribute to the understanding and development and ultimately the success of new community based initiatives in the U S Forest People Interfaces Bas Arts, Séverine van Bommel, Mirjam Ros-Tonen, Gerard Verschoor, 2012-05-22 This book aims at both academics and professionals in the field of forest people interfaces It takes the reader on a journey through four major themes that have emerged since the initiation of social forestry in the 1970s non timber forest products and agroforestry community based natural resource management biocultural diversity and forest governance In so doing the books offers a comprehensive and current review on social issues related to forests that other more specialized publications lack It is also theory rich offering both mainstream and critical perspectives and presents up to date empirical materials Reviewing these four major research themes the main conclusion of the book is that na ve optimism associated with forest people interfaces should be tempered The chapters show that economic development political empowerment and environmental aims are not easily integrated Hence local landscapes and communities are not as makeable as is often assumed Events that take place on other scales might intervene local communities might not implement policies locally and governance practices might empower governments more than communities This all shows that we should go beyond community based ideas and ideals and look at practices on the ground
