

United States Government

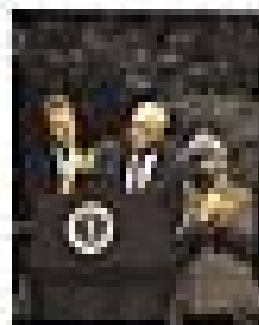

Structure of the Government

The United States is a federal republic. This means that the government is made up of many different parts, each with its own responsibilities. The three main branches of the government are the Executive, Legislative, and Judicial branches. Each branch has a specific role to play in the running of the country.

The Executive branch is headed by the President. The President is responsible for enforcing the laws of the country. The Legislative branch is made up of Congress, which is responsible for making laws. The Judicial branch is headed by the Supreme Court and is responsible for interpreting the laws.

Each branch has its own set of powers and responsibilities. The Executive branch has the power to appoint and remove federal judges. The Legislative branch has the power to pass laws. The Judicial branch has the power to declare laws unconstitutional.
