The Age of Total War, 1860-1945 Jeremy M. Black, 2006-03-31 What is total war Definitions abound but one thing is certain the concept of total war has come to be seen as a defining concept of the modern age Celebrated historian Jeremy Black explores the rise and demise of an era of total war which he defines in terms of the intensity of the struggle the range geographical and or chronological of conflict the nature of the goals and the extent to which civil society was involved He contends that this era roughly 1860 1945 was markedly different from the warfare that characterized earlier periods and that it is very different from the situation that has evolved since with its emphasis on asymmetrical conflict and limited warfare Acknowledging that various definitions are problematic and often contradictory Black argues that 1860 to 1945 was an era in which the prospect of war and the consequences of it were crucially important for human history He focuses primarily on conflict between Western powers including Japanese participation in the Russo Japanese War Trends and developments subsequent to 1945 have combined Black asserts to make a return to total war unlikely nineteenth century tremendous economic technological and scientific developments took place in Western Europe as states shifted from predominantly agricultural to pre dominantly industrial economies As a result of these changes the nature of warfare altered The First World War was not simply a struggle between the armed forces of belligerent nations It was a total war which Ultimately involved all the forces in the nations on a scale and with an intensity which mankind had never before experienced Total warfare demanded the entire strength of the nation In Germany the transition to total warfare began earliest and went furthest Even there it was born not in the early days of the fighting but only after the conflict extended beyond the period originally antici pated By mid 1916 the struggle had turned essentially into a battle of material and it became apparent that its economic and technical aspects were more important than the purely military An ever greater production of war essential goods became the paramount need Germany s armed forces had grown to an unprecedented size but each man in the military service represented at the same time an increase in the need for supplies and a decrease in the productive labor force The crux of the problem was the manpower shortage Mobilization for Total War Nándor F. prominent women of their day Elizabeth Cutter Morrow whose son in law Charles Lindbergh was an isolationist spokesman supported the revision of the Neutrality Acts to allow the sale of arms to the Allies and expressed her support in a national radio broadcast Soon other women joined this debate Esther Brunauer of the AAUW journalist Dorothy Thompson and organizations like the League of Women Voters and National Women's Trade Union League broke from the pacifist tradition to advocate American aid for the Allied cause Focusing on the conflict in Europe Paton Walsh shows how these women grasped the implications of the Lend Lease program for America's entry into the war but supported it nevertheless By late 1941 the Women's Division of the Fight for Freedom Committee had been established no longer merely advocating aid to Britain to keep American boys out of battle this organization supported direct American involvement in the war as a means of stopping Nazi oppression While most historians have focused on women's pacifism Paton Walsh connects women more directly to world events and shows how those interventionists reformulated maternalist ideas to justify and explain their beliefs Our War Too is a story of American women trying to reconcile the irreconcilable to preserve both their principles and their peace It expands our understanding of women as political actors and thinkers about foreign policy as it sheds new light on American public opinion over the build up to the war Labour Gazette Great Britain Department of Employment, 1920
