Prof Mayende demonstrates how the resolution of South Africa's land question and the ongoing crisis of land reform are fundamental aspects of decolonisation. He argues that a 'second agrarian transition' is a necessary prerequisite for the genuine economic empowerment of the country's historically dispossessed Africans. This decolonial thrust has been undermined by liberalism and neo-liberalism, and the diminution of the country's post-apartheid land reform largely to a superficial, incongruous and inefficacious 'market-based approach'. Prof Mayende makes various proposals for a comprehensive strategy for the redistribution of prime agricultural land undergirded by the central role of the state and social agency of the dispossessed, and guided by the principle of demographic proportionality.

The Agrarian Question In Kenya:

The Agrarian Question in Kenya Stephen Walter Orvis, 1997 Tackles central questions in the literature on African agrarian social structure and rural development Remarkably broad in scope rich in conceptual and theoretical content and it speaks directly to development policy Few volumes attempt so much and fewer yet do it as well Frank W Holmquist Hampshire College Amherst Provides new insights into debates about agricultural development in Africa through combining a historical and comparative perspective with a detailed case study Reveals the relationship between inequality and agricultural productivity to be much more complex than the current wisdom assumes A compelling picture Victoria Bernal University of California Irvine Kenya has been a model of market based development for many years widely touted because of early and significant economic successes Recent slowing in the growth of agriculture however has meant slower growth overall Stephen Orvis argues that a shortage of labor at the household level especially women s labor explains this stagnation In this important study Orvis critiques structural adjustment and delineates the ways in which market forces have been largely responsible for Kenya s gradual shift toward a less agrarian society He also explores the ways in which market forces have spawned the development of social and political networks that have little interest in improving agricultural growth and he provides the first detailed account of rural participation in the multiparty electoral process Drawing on intensive field work in Kisii District a densely populated area in the tea and coffee zones of western Kenya he documents the evolution of more than 100 families over three generations and the last 50 years plumbing their current and historical economic strategies He uses the insights generated by this micro analytic exercise to reinterpret a number of other peasant studies done in Kenya and elsewhere As a result he is able to draw convincing implications from his work for a surprisingly large range of issues central to our understanding of Kenyan sociology rural development and politics of interest to Kenya and development scholars alike Stephen Orvis is associate professor of government at Hamilton College

The Agrarian Question, Ethnicity and Politics in Kenya, 1955-1993, 1993 The Agrarian Question in Southern Africa and "accumulation from Below" M. Neocosmos, 1993 The Agrarian Question in the Neoliberal Era Utsa Patnaik, Sam Moyo, Issa G. Shivji, 2011-10-13 A compelling and critical destruction of both the English agricultural revolution and the theory of comparative advantage upon which unequal trade has been justified for three centuries this account argues that these ideas have been used to disguise the fact that the North from the time of colonialism to the present day has used the much greater agricultural productivity of the South to feed and improve the living standards of its own people while impoverishing the South At the same time the imposition of neoliberal reforms in the African continent has led to greater unemployment spiraling debt land and livestock losses reduced per capita food production and decreased nutrition Arguing that political stability hangs in the balance this book calls for labor intensive small scale production new thinking about which agricultural commodities are produced the redistribution of the means of food production and increased investment in rural development The combined effort of African and Indian scholarly work this account demands policies that defend the land rights of small producers and allow people to live with dignity Agrarian Questions ,1995 Global Jurisprudential Apartheid in the Twenty-First Century Howard Tafara Chitimira,Artwell Nhemachena,Tapiwa Victor Warikandwa,2021-09-27 In Global Jurisprudential Apartheid in the Twenty First Century Universalism and Particularism in International Law the contributors argue that the world is witnessing the formation of a global jurisprudential apartheid despite the promotion of democracy equality human rights and humanitarianism Examining organisations such as international criminal courts the World Trade Organisation the United Nations Security Council the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank the contributors unpack the challenges of global jurisprudential apartheid In particular they analyse the ways in which these organizations hold and contribute to the increasing inequalities between the Global North and the Global South Ultimately Global Jurisprudential Apartheid in the Twenty First Century shows that globalisation is a variant of the apartheid era particularism and not universalism working to advantage the Global North while disadvantaging the Global South under the pretense of humanitarianism Human Development in the Era of Globalization J. K. Boyce,Keith B. Griffin,James K. Boyce,2006 This volume provides a very high quality set of papers on the relationship between globalization and human development any one with interest in this wide ranging subject matter would find the volume an interesting and engaging read Global Business Review Honoring Keith Griffin s more than 40 years of fundamental contributions to the discipline of economics the papers in this volume reflect his deep commitment to advancing the well being of the world s poor majority and his unflinching willingness to question conventional wisdom as to how this should be done Four overarching themes recur in Keith Griffin s work and this book the need to both eradicate poverty and redress inequalities in the distribution of wealth within and among nations the impact of growth on inequality and conversely inequality s impact on growth the political economy of policy making and the need for openness to heterogeneity in both analytic tools and in policy recommendations The volume begins with an introduction by the editors followed by a paper by Keith Griffin In succeeding chapters the contributors explore strategies for reducing poverty and inequality and provide perspectives on issues such as human development the rural urban divide in China and biodiversity and sustainability Students researchers policymakers and NGO analysts exploring issues in development economics development studies alternative economic systems globalization environmental sustainability inequality and well being will find this book of great interest Justice Framed Marcos Zunino,2019-03-14 Why are certain responses to past human rights violations considered instances of transitional justice while others are disregarded This study interrogates the history of the discourse and practice of the field to answer that question Zunino argues that a number of characteristics inherited as transitional justice emerged as a discourse in the 1980s and 1990s have shaped which practices of the present and the past are now regarded as valid responses to past human rights violations He traces these influential characteristics from Argentina s transition to democracy in 1983 the end of communism in Eastern Europe the development of international criminal justice and the South African truth commission of 1995 Through an analysis of the post World War II period the decolonisation process and the Cold War Zunino identifies a series of episodes and mechanisms omitted from the history of transitional justice because they did not conform to its accepted characteristics Alternative Globalizations James Mark,Artemy M. Kalinovsky,Steffi Marung,2020-02-11

Globalization has become synonymous with the seemingly unfettered spread of capitalist multinationals but this focus on the West and western economies ignores the wide variety of globalizing projects that sprang up in the socialist world as a consequence of the end of the European empires This collection is the first to explore alternative forms of globalization across the socialist world during the Cold War Gathering the work of established and upcoming scholars of the Soviet Union Eastern Europe and China Alternative Globalizations addresses the new relationships and interconnections which emerged between a decolonizing world in the postwar period and an increasingly internationalist eastern bloc after the death of Stalin In many cases the legacies of these former globalizing impulses from the socialist world still exist today Divided into four sections the works gathered examine the economic political developmental and cultural aspects of this exchange In doing so the authors break new ground in exploring this understudied history of globalization and provide a multifaceted study of an increasing postwar interconnectedness across a socialist world Agrarian Questions Kaushik Basu,1994 The importance of locating the analysis of contracts within the relevant context of socio economic relations is also discussed In addition to these theoretical issues there is an extremely valuable bird s eye view of the actual experience of Indian agriculture since independence in 1947 Finally we have a careful study of the link between agriculture and overall economic progress in the Indian context The Library Catalogs of the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution, and Peace, Stanford
