

Conversational Skills

Communication and connection with family and friends are key goals for children who are deaf and hard of hearing. We usually learn how these interactions work through watching and overhearing people chatting with each other. Children with hearing loss can miss out on this learning experience.

You can help them develop their conversational skills by teaching your child how to interact in different scenarios. These are some skills your child needs to become an effective communicator.

Meeting others - Knowing when to smile, make eye contact and show interest in the other person

Paying attention – Listening or watching to what is being communicated

Turn taking – Knowing when it is their turn or someone else's turn to talk or sign

Remembering - What the person said

Sequencing - Remembering the order in which a story was told

Comprehension - Understanding what the person had said

Responding - Replying appropriately to the other person when it is their turn

Pragmatics - Using the society's rules to guide how to interact with others
