The New Is Not Yet Born Conflict Resolution In Southern Africa:

The New is Not Yet Born Thomas Ohlson, Stephen John Stedman, Robert H. Davies, 1994 In April 1994 black and white South Africans for the first time voted in a nonracial election for a democratic government. This watershed election is one of many recent profound changes in Southern Africa including independence in Namibia democratic elections in Zambia and Malawi a peace agreement in Mozambique and renewed civil war in Angola. The New Is Not Yet Born explores the sources and dynamics of the political economic and diplomatic transformations taking place in Southern Africa. Thomas Ohlson, Stephen John Stedman and Robert Davies recount how Southern Africa has long endured violent domestic and interstate conflicts often complicated and intensified by external interventions and interests. The cost of these struggles by all measures has been staggering. The authors show how conflict in Southern Africa has left and continues to leave tremendous socioeconomic destruction. They identify the past present and possible future sources of conflict in the region. They describe the security implications of conflict and evaluate the institutions organizations and policies that might help reduce or resolve conflict and provide security for the people and countries of Southern Africa. Although the democratic transition in South Africa opens the possibility of creating a secure Southern Africa the authors note that past conflict legacies and new unanticipated conflicts could stand in the way. They conclude that the challenge ahead will be to establish new national and regional institutions which enable actors to resolve conflict without resorting to violence. This book suggests ways that international action can help the birth of a new Southern Africa.

The New is Not Yet Born Thomas Ohlson, Stephen John Stedman, Robert H. Davies, 1994 This book explores the sources and dynamics of the political economic and diplomatic transformations taking place in Southern Africa. These authors recount how Southern Africa has long endured violent domestic and interstate conflicts often complicated and intensified by external interventions and interests. They also show how conflict in Southern Africa has left and continues to leave tremendous socioeconomic destruction.

Demilitarisation and Peace-Building in Southern Africa Peter Batchelor, 2018-12-17 First published in 2004 this work is based on a collaborative research project this trilogy considers the dynamics of demilitarisation and peace building in southern Africa in the aftermath of major violent conflicts. The overall aim of the research is to support and facilitate the achievement of sustainable peace and human development in southern Africa by analysing demilitarisation and peace building processes in the region and identifying policy options and interventions for peace building. The central focus of the research is the extent to which demilitarisation following the termination of wars has contributed to broad processes of peace building in the affected region. Has the military in southern Africa downsized and refocused towards new roles. Has there been a peace dividend allowing more investment in economic and human development thereby dealing with some of the root causes of conflict. Volume I provides a conceptual framework for the analysis of demilitarisation and peace building processes applicable particularly in the southern Africa.

context This volume argues that a broad concept of peace building has to take into account economic political social and cultural factors at the local national and regional level The New Is Not Yet Born Thomas Ohlson, Stephen John Stedman,2010-12-01 In April 1994 black and white South Africans voted for the first time for a nonracial government This watershed election in the spring of 94 was one of many profound changes in Southern Africa including independence in Namibia democratic elections in Zambia a peace agreement in Mozambique and renewed civil war in Angola The authors explore the sources and dynamics of the political economic and diplomatic transformations that took place in Southern Africa They recount how Southern Africa has long endured costly violent domestic and interstate conflicts often complicated and intensified by external interventions and interests They also analyze the various attempts to resolve Southern Africa's conflicts They suggest that the democratic transition in South Africa has opened the possibility to create a secure Southern Africa but they also note that past conflict legacies and new unanticipated conflicts could stand in the way The challenge ahead will be to create new institutions at the national and regional levels that can help political players resolve conflict without resorting to violence Region-Building in Southern Africa Chris Saunders,Gwinyayi Albert Dzinesa,Dawn Nagar,2013-07-04 How successful have Southern African states been in dealing with the major issues that have faced the region in recent years What could be done to produce more cohesive and effective region building in Southern Africa In this original and wide ranging volume which draws on an interdisciplinary team of mainly African and African based specialists the key political socio economic and security challenges facing Southern Africa today are addressed These include the various issues confronting the Southern African Development Community SADC and its institutions such as HIV AIDS migration and xenophobia land grabbing and climate change and the role of the main external actors involved with the region including the United Nations the European Union the United States and China The book also looks at the Southern African Customs Union and Southern African Development Finance Institutions including the Development Bank of Southern Africa and Industrial Development Corporation and issues of gender and peacebuilding In doing so the book goes to the heart of analyzing the effectiveness of SADC and other regional organisation suggesting how region building in Southern Africa may be compared with similar attempts elsewhere in Africa and other parts of the world Conflict in Southern Africa W.
