UNESCO,2021-10-01 The production and distribution of film and audiovisual works is one of the most dynamic growth sectors in the world Thanks to digital technologies production has been growing rapidly in Africa in recent years For the first time a complete mapping of the film and audiovisual industry in 54 States of the African continent is available including quantitative and qualitative data and an analysis of their strengths and weaknesses at the continental and regional levels The report proposes strategic recommendations for the development of the film and audiovisual sectors in Africa and invites policymakers professional organizations firms filmmakers and artists to implement them in a concerted manner Negro Year Book and Annual Encyclopedia of the Negro ,1931

Slow Fade to Black Thomas Cripps,1977-02-03 Set against the backdrop of the black struggle in society Slow Fade to Black is the definitive history of African American accomplishment in film both before and behind the camera from the earliest movies through World War II As he records the changing attitudes toward African Americans both in Hollywood and the nation at large Cripps explores the growth of discrimination as filmmakers became more and more intrigued with myths of the Old South the lost cause aspect of the Civil War the stately mansions and gracious ladies of the antebellum South the happy slaves singing in the fields Cripps shows how these characterizations culminated in the blatantly racist attitudes of Griffith s The Birth of a Nation and how this film inspired the N A A C P to campaign vigorously and successfully for change While the period of the 1920s to 1940s was one replete with Hollywood stereotypes blacks most often appeared as domestics or natives or were portrayed in shiftless cowardly Stepin Fetchit roles there was also an attempt at independent black production on the whole unsuccessful But with the coming of World War II increasing pressures for a wider use of blacks in films and calls for more equitable treatment African Americans did begin to receive more sympathetic roles such as that of Sam the piano player in the 1942 classic Casablanca A lively thorough history of African Americans in the movies Slow Fade to Black is also a perceptive social commentary on evolving racial attitudes in this country during the first four decades of the twentieth century

Black Manhood on the Silent Screen Gerald R.

Butters,2002 In early twentieth century motion picture houses offensive stereotypes of African Americans were as predictable as they were prevalent Watermelon eating chicken thievery savages with uncontrollable appetites Sambo and Zip Coon were all representations associated with African American people Most of these caricatures were rendered by whites in blackface Few people realize that from 1915 through 1929 a number of African American film directors worked diligently to counter such racist definitions of black manhood found in films like D W Griffith s The Birth of a Nation the 1915 epic that glorified the Ku Klux Klan. In the wake of the film's phenomenal success African American filmmakers sought to defend and redefine black manhood through motion pictures. Gerald Butters's comprehensive study of the African American cinematic vision in silent film concentrates on works largely ignored by most contemporary film scholars. African American produced and directed films and white independent productions of all black features. Using these race movies to explore the construction of masculine identity and the use of race in popular culture he separates cinematic myth from historical reality the myth of the Euro American controlled cinematic portrayal of black men versus the actual black male experience. Through intense archival research Butters reconstructs many lost films expanding the discussion of race and representation beyond the debate about good and bad imagery to explore the construction of masculine identity and the use of race as device in the context of Western popular culture. He particularly examines the filmmaking of Oscar Micheaux the most prolific and controversial of all African American silent film directors and creator of the recently rediscovered Within Our Gates the legendary film that exposed a virtual litany of white abuses toward blacks. Black Manhood on the Silent Screen is unique in that it takes contemporary and original film theory applies it to the distinctive body of African American independent films in the silent era and relates the meaning of these films to larger political social and intellectual events in American society. By showing how both white and black men have defined their own sense of manhood through cinema it examines the intersection of race and gender in the movies and offers a deft interweaving of film theory American history and film history.

The 22 rediscovered films were made by black producers directors and writers for exclusively black audiences from the 1920s to the early 1950s. They provide one of the best sources for knowledge of the black self consciousness in America during those years. Director and actor Ossie Davis foreword and Jones overview of the history of black filmmaking discuss the authenticity and awkwardness of the films compare them with Hollywood made all black cast films of the 1930s and explain their social significance. Brief biographies and filmographies of the pioneers of black filmmaking Oscar Micheaux Spencer Williams William Alexander and George Randol are included as are film synopses and frame blowups.
