A decorative red circular graphic element, resembling a stylized sun or a lens flare, is positioned to the right of the author's name. It has a soft, glowing red center that fades into a lighter red and then into the white background of the slide.

The Neolithic Of The Near East:

The Neolithic of the Near East James Mellaart, 1975      Concluding the Neolithic Arkadiusz Marciniak, 2019-12-15 The second half of the seventh millennium BC saw the demise of the previously affluent and dynamic Neolithic way of life. The period is marked by significant social and economic transformations of local communities as manifested in a new spatial organization, patterns of architecture, burial practices and in chipped stone and pottery manufacture. This volume has three foci. The first concerns the character of these changes in different parts of the Near East with a view to placing them in a broader comparative perspective. The second concerns the social and ideological changes that took place at the end of Neolithic and the beginning of the Chalcolithic that help to explain the disintegration of constitutive principles binding the large centers, the emergence of a new social system as well as the consequences of this process for the development of full fledged farming communities in the region and beyond. The third concerns changes in lifeways, subsistence strategies, exploitation of the environment and in particular modes of procurement, consumption and distribution of different resources.

Death and Dying in the Neolithic Near East Karina Croucher, 2012-06-21 The Neolithic of the Near East is a period of human development which saw fundamental changes in the nature of human society. It is traditionally studied for its development of domestication, agriculture and growing social complexity. In this book Karina Croucher takes a new approach focusing on the human body and investigating mortuary practices, the treatment and burial of the dead to discover what these can reveal about the people of the Neolithic Near East. The remarkable evidence relating to mortuary practices and ritual behaviour from the Near Eastern Neolithic provides some of the most breath taking archaeological evidence excavated from Neolithic contexts. The most enigmatic mortuary practices of the period produced the striking plastered skulls, faces modelled onto the crania of the deceased. Archaeological sites also contain evidence for many intriguing mortuary treatments including decapitated burials and the fragmentation, circulation, curation and reburial of human and animal remains and material culture. Drawing on recent excavations and earlier archive and published fieldwork Croucher provides an overview and introduction to the period, presenting new interpretations of the archaeological evidence and in depth analyses of case studies. The book explores themes such as ancestors, human-animal relationships, food consumption and cannibalism, personhood and gender. Offering a unique insight into changing attitudes towards the human body both in life and during death, this book reveals the identities and experiences of the people of the Neolithic Near East through their interactions with their dead, with animals and their new material worlds.

The Near East Charles Keith Maisels, 1993 Charles Maisels follows the course of discovery of the land between the rivers over more than a century to our present conclusions, very different from the first discoveries.      Territories, Boundaries and Cultures in the Neolithic Near East Stefan Karol Kozłowski, Olivier Aurenche, 2005 This book presents a study of Neolithisation and the chronological sequence of Neolithic cultures in the Near East. Focusing on the years between 10 500 and 6200 BC, the authors start with empirical data in an attempt to reveal not only cultures but the territorial limits of these cultures their borders and their possible interactions with time The geographical zone covered comprises the two branches of the area known traditionally as the Fertile Crescent as well as the steppe desert zone which they encompass A full Appendix presents a catalogue and find distribution sites

Preface by F Hole      The Development of Pre-State Communities in the Ancient Near East Diane Bolger,Louise C. Maguire,2010-04-30 This book explores the dynamics of small scale societies in the ancient Near East by examining the ways in which particular communities functioned and interacted and by moving beyond the broad neo evolutionary models of social change which have characterised many earlier approaches By focusing on issues of diversity scale and context it considers the ways in which economy crafts technology and ritual were organised the roles played by mortuary practices and households in the structure and development of ancient societies and the importance of agency identity ethnicity gender community and cultural interaction for the rise of socio economic complexity The contributors to this volume are well known archaeologists in the field of Near Eastern studies all are currently engaged in fieldwork or research in Cyprus the Levant or Turkey The variety and depth of the research they present here reflect the richness of the archaeological record in the cradle of civilisation and convey the vibrancy of current interpretive approaches within the field of Near Eastern prehistory today

Remembering the Dead in the Ancient Near East Benjamin W. Porter,Alexis T. Boutin,2014-12-02 Remembering the Dead in the Ancient Near East is among the first comprehensive treatments to present the diverse ways in which ancient Near Eastern civilizations memorialized and honored their dead using mortuary rituals human skeletal remains and embodied identities as a window into the memory work of past societies In six case studies teams of researchers with different skillsets osteological analysis faunal analysis culture history and the analysis of written texts and artifact analysis integrate mortuary analysis with bioarchaeological techniques Drawing upon different kinds of data including human remains ceramics jewelry spatial analysis and faunal remains found in burial sites from across the region s societies the authors paint a robust and complex picture of death in the ancient Near East Demonstrating the still underexplored potential of bioarchaeological analysis in ancient societies Remembering the Dead in the Ancient Near East serves as a model for using multiple lines of evidence to reconstruct commemoration practices It will be of great interest to students and scholars of ancient Near Eastern and Egyptian societies the archaeology of death and burial bioarchaeology and human skeletal biology      The Bloomsbury Handbook of Material Religion in the Ancient Near East and Egypt Nicola Laneri,Sharon R. Steadman,2023-06-29 With contributions spanning from the Neolithic Age to the Iron Age this book offers important insights into the religions and ritual practices in ancient Egyptian and Near Eastern communities through the lenses of their material remains The book begins with a theoretical introduction to the concept of material religion and features editor introductions to each of its six parts which tackle the following themes the human body religious architecture the written word sacred images the spirituality of animals and the sacred role of the landscape Illustrated with over 100 images chapters provide insight into every element of religion and materiality from the largest building to the smallest amulet This is a benchmark work for further studies on material religion in the ancient Near East and Egypt

The Neolithic Revolution in the Near East Alan H.

Simmons,2011-04-15 One of humanity's most important milestones was the transition from hunting and gathering to food production and permanent village life This Neolithic Revolution first occurred in the Near East changing the way humans interacted with their environment and each other setting the stage ultimately for the modern world Based on more than thirty years of fieldwork this timely volume examines the Neolithic Revolution in the Levantine Near East and the Mediterranean island of Cyprus Alan H Simmons explores recent research regarding the emergence of Neolithic populations using both environmental and theoretical contexts and incorporates specific case studies based on his own excavations In clear and graceful prose Simmons traces chronological and regional differences within this land of immense environmental contrasts woodland steppe and desert He argues that the Neolithic Revolution can be seen in a variety of economic demographic and social guises and that it lacked a single common stimulus Each chapter includes sections on history terminology geographic range specific domesticated species the composition of early villages and households and the development of social symbolic and religious behavior Most chapters include at least one case study and conclude with a concise summary In addition Simmons presents a unique chapter on the island of Cyprus where intriguing new research challenges assumptions about the impact and extent of the Neolithic The Neolithic Revolution in the Near East conveys the diversity of our Neolithic ancestors providing a better understanding of the period and the new social order that arose because of it This insightful volume will be especially useful to Near Eastern scholars and to students of archaeology and the origins of agriculture

The Oxford Encyclopedia of Archaeology in the Near East Eric M. Meyers,American

Schools of Oriental Research,1997 This comprehensive five volume work analyzes the archaeological and linguistic data that pertain to the broad cultural milieu of the ancient Near East the crossroads of three of the world's most influential religions Judaism Christianity and Islam Ranging from prehistoric times up to the early centuries of the rise of Islam the work covers the civilizations of Syria Palestine Mesopotamia Anatolia Iran Arabia Cyprus Egypt and the coastal regions of North and East Africa It includes 1 125 alphabetically arranged entries on sites languages material culture archaeological methods organizations and institutions and major excavators and scholars of the field This one of a kind accessibly written reference brings new breadth to the study of archaeology in the biblical world making it a valuable resource not only to scholars and students of archaeology but also to those with an interest in ancient art and architecture languages history and religion

Alibris com The Development of 'cultural Regions' in the Neolithic of the Near East Francesca Balossi Restelli,2006 This work defines Neolithic Near East Dark Faced Burnished Ware DFBW on the basis of new data taking into account areas of production analyses of architectural economic and environmental information and the verification of the existence of a specific DFBW region and its characteristics The distribution of DFBW to external areas is also investigated with the goal of explaining relations between these regions during this Neolithic phase This research was prompted by the renewed excavations at Yumuktepe Mersin one of the central sites of the so called Syro Cilician culture and by the possibility of analyzing two of the main contexts of DFBW Judaidah in the Amuq and Ain el Kerkh in the Rouj Basin The study is presented in three main phases the technical and typological definition of the DFBW its distribution and characteristics within the horizon of DFBW producers and its external distribution A chapter is devoted to a chronological summary of the analyzed developments as reconstructed from comparisons in the ceramic assemblages from all the sites and in correlation with available radiocarbon dates

Tracking the Neolithic in the Near East Yoshihiro Nishiaki, Osamu Maeda, Makoto Arimura, 2022-05-26 This book combines the latest studies of Near Eastern Neolithic lithics by leading international archaeologists to develop their analytical potential and advance our understanding of the world oldest farming societies of the Near East in human history This volume presents the proceedings of the 9th International Conference of the Pre Pottery Neolithic Chipped and Ground Stone Industries of the Near East hosted at the University of Tokyo Japan from November 12 to 16 2019 PPN9 Tokyo A unique point of the volume while referring to the origins and development as in the proceedings of the previous conferences is a greater emphasis on regional perspectives to evaluate the Near Eastern Neolithic The current research indicates that the earliest farming societies of the Near East developed in interaction with neighboring hunter gatherer societies that either coexisted with them for long periods or soon assimilated to the Near Eastern farmers Understanding these contrasting processes would shed new light on identifying the Neolithization practices of the core regions in the Near East itself A similar attempt was made at the PPN2 Warsaw in 1995 but the present volume provides the most up to date discoveries and perspectives after a quarter century The 39 papers in this volume include contributions on the Iranian Zagros the Caucasus and Central Asia a region whose Neolithic archaeological records are far less well understood but that we believe will enrich our understanding of the first farming societies of the Near East

Civilizations of the Ancient Near East Jack M. Sasson, 1995 Consists of articles organized in eleven parts the ancient Near East in Western thought the environment population social institutions history and culture economy and trade technology and artistic production religion and science language writing and literature visual and performing arts and retrospective essays

Technology of the Ancient Near East Jill L. Baker, 2018-10-10 Peoples of the distant past lived comfortably in cities that boasted well conceived urban planning monumental architecture running water artistic expression knowledge of mathematics and medicine and more Without the benefits of modern technology they enjoyed all the accoutrements of modern civilization Technology of the Ancient Near East brings together in a single volume what is known about the technology behind these achievements based on the archaeological textual historic and scientific data drawn from a wide range of sources focusing on subjects such as warfare construction metallurgy ceramics and glass water management and time keeping These technologies are discussed within the cultural historic and socio economic contexts within which they were invented and the book emphasises these as the foundation upon which modern technology is based In so doing this study elucidates the ingenuity of ancient minds offering an invaluable introduction for students of ancient technology and science
