Before Bones before CSI before Quincy M.E. there was Dr John Thorndyke. In The Mystery of 31 New Inn Dr Jervis is whisked away in a coach with no windows to an unknown location. There he is asked to treat a man in a coma from unknown causes but quickly comes to suspect that the man is being poisoned. With the help of Dr John Thorndyke he is later able to find the house but there is no trace of either the patient or those who summoned him. Has murder been committed and how do these strange events relate to Thorndyke's current case? These are the questions that Dr Thorndyke, expert of medical jurisprudence, must answer in the Mystery of 31 New Inn. This classic book was edited and published by Resurrected Press. The Mystery of 31 New Inn Beyond Words Press, R. Austin Freeman, 2020-09-08

Second in the Dr Thorndyke mystery series set in London around 1900. Thorndyke is a lawyer and medical doctor who reasons out mysteries. This involves a young doctor friend who Thorndyke hires as his assistant whose strange case involving a mysterious man and couple who are caring for him and an inheritance case brought to Thorndyke. A classic English mystery with the detective Dr Thorndyke solving what appears to be two disparate mysteries. One is an apparent suicide with a disputed will, the other is one of his sidekick's Dr Jervis' odd case of an apparent poisoning. Despite the twists and turns the mysteries are solved.

As I look back through the years of my association with John Thorndyke I am able to recall a wealth of adventures and strange experiences such as falls to the lot of very few men who pass their lives within hearing of Big Ben. Many of these experiences I have already placed on record but it now occurs to me that I have hitherto left unrecorded one that is perhaps the most astonishing and incredible of the whole series an adventure too that has for me the added interest that it inaugurated my permanent association with my learned and talented friend and marked the close of a rather unhappy and unprosperous period of my life. Memory retracing the journey through the passing years to the starting point of those strange events lands me in a shabby little ground floor room in a house near the Walworth end of Lower Kennington Lane A couple of framed diplomas on the wall a card of Snellen's test types and a stethoscope lying on the writing table proclaim it a doctor's consulting room and my own position in the round backed chair at the said table proclaims me the practitioner in charge It was nearly nine o'clock The noisy little clock on the mantelpiece announced the fact and by its frantic ticking seemed as anxious as I to get the consultation hours over I glanced wistfully at my mud splashed boots and wondered if I might yet venture to assume the slippers that peeped coyly from under the shabby sofa I even allowed my thoughts to wander to the pipe that reposed in my coat pocket Another minute and I could turn down the surgery gas and shut the outer door The fussy little clock gave a sort of preliminary cough or hiccup as if it should say Ahem ladies and gentlemen I am about to strike And at that moment the bottle boy opened the door and thrusting in his head uttered the one word Gentleman Extreme economy of words is apt to result in ambiguity But I understood In Kennington Lane the race of mere men and women appeared to be extinct They were all gentlemen unless they were ladies or children even as the Liberian army was said to consist entirely of generals Sweeps labourers milkmen costermongers all were impartially invested by the democratic bottle boy with the rank and title of armigeri The present nobleman appeared to favour the aristocratic recreation of driving a cab or job master's carriage and as he entered the room he touched his hat closed the door somewhat carefully and then without remark handed me a note which bore the superscription Dr Stillbury You understand I said as I prepared to open the envelope that I am not Dr Stillbury He is away at present and I am looking after his patients It doesn't signify the man replied You'll do as well On this I opened the envelope and read the note which was quite brief and at first sight in no way remarkable DEAR SIR it ran Would you kindly come and see a friend of mine who is staying with me The bearer of this will give you further particulars and convey you to the house Yours truly H WEISS There was no address on the paper and no date and the writer was unknown to me
